

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE MIDDLE AGES.

LXIX.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF
GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND
DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

PUBLISHED BY THE AUTHORITY OF HER MAJESTY'S TREASURY, UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

ON the 26th of January 1857, the Master of the Rolls submitted to the Treasury a proposal for the publication of materials for the History of this Country from the Invasion of the Romans to the reign of Henry VIII.

The Master of the Rolls suggested that these materials should be selected for publication under competent editors without reference to periodical or chronological arrangement, without mutilation or abridgment, preference being given, in the first instance, to such materials as were most scarce and valuable.

He proposed that each chronicle or historical document to be edited should be treated in the same way as if the editor were engaged on an Editio Princeps; and for this purpose the most correct text should be formed from an accurate collation of the best MSS.

To render the work more generally useful, the Master of the Rolls suggested that the editor should give an account of the MSS. employed by him, of their age and their peculiarities; that he should add to the work a brief account of the life and times of the author, and any remarks necessary to explain the chronology; but no other note or comment was to be allowed, except what might be necessary to establish the correctness of the text.

The works to be published in octavo, separately, as they were finished; the whole responsibility of the task resting upon the editors, who were to be chosen by the Master of the Rolls with the sanction of the Treasury.

The Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury, after a careful consideration of the subject, expressed their opinion in a Treasury Minute, dated February 9, 1857, that the plan recommended by the Master of the Rolls "was well calculated for the accomplishment of this important national object, in an effectual and satisfactory manner, within a reasonable time, and provided proper attention be paid to economy, in making the detailed arrangements, without unnecessary expense."

They expressed their approbation of the proposal that each Chronicle and historical document should be edited in such a manner as to represent with all possible correctness the text of each writer, derived from a collation of the best MSS., and that no notes should be added, except such as were illustrative of the various readings. They suggested, however, that the preface to each work should contain, in addition to the particulars proposed by the Master of the Rolls, a biographical account of the author, so far as authentic materials existed for that purpose, and an estimate of his historical credibility and value.

INTRODUCTION.

INTRODUCTION.

To account for the existence and establish the authenticity of the manuscript (evidently a Public Record, yet now preserved amongst the private muniments of the Marquis of Ormonde) which forms the principal subject of the present volume, it is requisite that the connexion of his ancestors with the Government of Ireland at the period should be clearly shown. For this purpose, there is no need to trace them from their advent to Ireland in the reign of Henry II. It is enough here to state that from Theobald FitzWalter,¹ who acquired the territory of Ormond or East Munster, was Lord of Arklow and had other lands in Leinster, and Chief Butler of Ireland, descended James le Boteler, Earl of Ormonde, surnamed² "the Noble." He was the only son of James second Earl

² His father was called by the Irish the "Stammerer," and he himself the "Chaste," and his son James, the fourth Earl, "the White," or "Fair;" as in subsequent times Thomas, the tenth Earl, received the sobriquet of "the Black," and the eleventh Earl was designated "Walter of the beads and rosaries." James "the Noble" Earl of Ormonde was so called on account of being the great-grandchild of Edward the First.

of Carrick¹ and first Earl of Ormonde, by Eleanor, eldest surviving daughter of Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford and Essex, Constable of England, and his wife, Elizabeth, the seventh daughter of King Edward I. His sole sister Petronilla was married to Gilbert Lord Talbot, grandfather of the famous Sir John Talbot, Lord Furnival, and afterwards Earl of Shrewsbury. The "Noble" Earl was seven years old at his father's death on January 6th, 1338, and his wardship was first granted to Maurice FitzThomas, Earl of Desmond. By his opposition to the Royal authority that Earl lost the wardship of Ormonde, which was conferred, March 24, 1346, on Sir John Darcy the Elder, of Platten, to whose daughter Elizabeth he was ultimately, in consequence, married.² The only son of this marriage was James, fourth Earl of Carrick and third Earl of Ormonde, who on his father's death Oct. 18, 1382 was a minor. The exact year of his birth is not known, but immediately after his father's decease, he unduly entered on, and turned to his own use, the rents and profits of his manors and lands.³ He was most likely of age before 1384 as he was then appointed Deputy to Philip de Courtenay, the Lord Lieutenant, which post he held until 1385, and on November 12th in the former year he had been associated with Alexander, Bishop of Ossory, Lord Treasurer of Ireland, to treat with Mac Murrough, who complained that although he was at peace, Sir Maurice FitzEustace, Edmund Perers, Robert Tame, and others of the Lord

² Carte, "Life of James, Duke of Ormonde," Introduction, p. xxxiv. Richard Lawless, in his Manuscript Pedigree of the House of Ormonde, says, "she was a very honorable and wise lady and much esteemed by the Earle her husband."

Lieutenant's retinue had seized over sixty cows belonging to the said Mac Murrough's tenants. On the 26th of the same month, Sir Patrick de la Freigne was granted 100s. for treating with the Earls of Ormonde and Desmond relative to the great feuds which had arisen between them. This conference, which lasted fifteen days, took place at Clonmel, and resulted in concord being restored for the time being, to the great peace and ease of the lieges of Munster.¹ This Earl of Desmond had married Ormonde's sister. In 1385 we find him engaging another brother-in-law, Tiegue O'Carroll, in the King's service to resist O'Brien of Thomond, who had confederated with many of the Irish of Munster, Leinster, and Connaught to destroy the faithful lieges of the two former provinces.² On the 12th of the subsequent July, Earl James, together with the Bishops of Ossory and Lismore, and Gerald Earl of Desmond, was deputed by the Lord Lieutenant, Philip de Courtenay, to continue a Great Council, summoned to meet at Kilkenny on the Monday after the feast of St. Margaret next following, the Lord Lieutenant being busied in the wars with the Mac Murroughs, O'Nolans, O'Byrnes, and O'Tooles.³ In 1387 the Earl of Ormonde was again at variance with the lords to the Irish chiefs when they wished to obtain their aid and alliance. The custom was essentially Irish, and the acceptance of such fees was an acknowledgment of subjection to the giver, as may be seen from "The Book of Rights," published by the Celtic Society. Tiegue O'Carroll, Prince of Ely O'Carroll, married Ormonde's second sister, Joan, who died of the plague in 1383.

³ Rot. Pat. 9 Ric. II., 1.

Earl of Desmond, and the Marquis of Dublin, as Lord of Ireland, appointed the Earl of Kildare to try and bring about a permanent reconciliation between them;¹ in the May of the next year Ormonde was at Clonmel, the chief town of his Palatinate or Liberty of Tipperary,² and on the 12th of the following August he obtained license to absent himself, with three servants, from Ireland,³ when it is likely he went to attend on the King in England. The O'Kennedys of Upper Ormond had in his father's time taken the Earl's chief fortress, the castle of Nenagh, and expelled all the English gentlemen and freeholders of that district. This seems to have caused the third Earl to reside chiefly on his property in the county of Kilkenny, where, at Gowran, he built a castle,⁴

² As a specimen of the palatinate jurisdiction enjoyed by the Earl of Ormonde in this district the "Pardon," which follows almost verbatim the royal instruments of the same nature, is here printed:—

Jacobus le Botiller, Comes Ermonie, Dominus Libertatis Typpariensis, Omnibus ballivis et fidelibus suis ad quos presentes litere pervenerint salutem. Sciatis quod de gratia nostra speciali pardonavimus Roberto Prendergast, de Novo Castro, sectam pacis, quæ ad nos pertinet, et de omnibus transgressionibus, felonis, sedicionibus, extorcionibus, confederacionibus, falsis alleganciis, receptamentis et abettamentis feloniorum, adherenciis inimicis et aliis falsitatibus et gravaminibus quibuscumque, per ipsum usque ad hunc diem infra Libertatem predictam qualitercumque perpetratis, incendio, raptu, forstallo, et thesauro invento, duntaxat exceptis; ac etiam utlegariis, si que in personam ipsius Roberti occasionibus predictis fuerint promulgate; et firmam pacem nostram ei inde concedimus. Ita tamen quod stet recte in Curia Libertatis predictæ, si quis inde versus eum loqui voluerit, et quod de cetero se bene et fideliter gerat erga Dominum nostrum Regem, nos, heredes et ministros nostros, pacem, et fidelem populum nostrum. In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras fecimus patentes. Teste me ipso apud Clonmell, xxix. die Maii, anno regni Regis Ricardi Secundi post conquestum Anglie undecimo.

⁴ This castle, which stood on an obstatinate siege against the forces of Cromwell in 1649, is now utterly destroyed. Earl James also built whence he was often called "Earl of Gowran." In September 1392 he purchased, from Sir Hugh le Despenser, Kilkenny Castle and that portion of the great De Clare seigniorship of Kilkenny acquired in the early part of the reign of Edward II. by an earlier Hugh le Despenser, in right of his wife Eleanor eldest daughter of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester and Hertford and Lord of Kilkenny.¹

In the meantime Richard had made his favourite, De Vere, Marquis of Dublin and Duke of Ireland, and conferred on him "with a glad heart, and as much as in him lay, the entire land and dominion of Ireland." The sole reservation in the Patent (excepting some pre-existing rights) was the King's feudal superiority. The new Lord of Ireland was empowered to coin money in his own name, use his private arms² on the Great Seal, and emblazon them on his banner which was to be carried in battle, and before the troops, instead of the King's; and "Robertus Marchio Dublinii" displaces the accustomed "Ricardus Rex" in the Patent Rolls of Ireland. On the downfall of de Vere in 1387, the government was administered by Alexander Balcot, Bishop of Meath, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, and Richard White, Prior of Kilmainham; and in 1388 Balcot was censured for still using De Vere's seal in public documents, and advancing his banners and pennons in military operations.³ In 1389 Sir John Stanley was appointed Lord Lieutenant by the King for three the castle of Dunfort (now Danesfort), in the county of Kilkenny.

¹ The original deeds of purchase, release, and attornment, are preserved at Kilkenny Castle. The sum originally agreed to be paid by Ormonde was 1,000*l.*, but on his relinquishing certain claims, le Despenser gives Ormonde a full release on the payment of 200*l.* in the New Temple, London.

² These, which were specially devised by the King in honour of de Vere's new dignity, and embodied in a Patent, were azure three crowns or within a border argent.

years.¹ About this time Ormonde forwarded to England a "message" from the Commons of Ireland, and wrote concerning it to the Dukes of Surrey and Exeter, the King's Council, and the Earl of Marche, urgently representing that Richard's personal presence in Ireland was greatly desired.²

In 1393 the Earl of Ormonde was made Lord Justice of Ireland, by Patent dated May 31,³ for one year from the following 24th of June, and by indenture between nuper ducis Hiberniæ, sub nomine Marchionis Dublinii, cui nuper dominium et regimen terræ predictæ concessimus . . . erroneè usi fuistis, ac vexilla et penuncellos ejusdem Roberti contra aggressus et invasiones hostium et rebellium nostrorum Hibernicorum similiter erigi, levare et displicari fecistis in nostri dedecus et vituperium manifestum, Nos . . . injungimus et mandamus quod, sigillo vexillis et penuncellis præfati Roberti, in dicta terra habitis, et pro tempore usitatis, sine dilatione amotis penitus et deletis, omnia et singula . . . sigillo nostro, quo per antea inibi utebamur, quod in thesaurario nostro ibidem existit . . . consignari, nostraque vexilla et penuncellos . . . erigi et displicari faciat. Teste Rege apud Westmonasterium, iv. die Aprilis [1388]."

² This message from the Commons is assigned to the early part of the reign of Hen. IV. (though with some doubt) in the "Proceedings, &c. of the Privy Council of England," Vol. II. p. 43. But both the Earls of Marche were dead before Richard's second expedition to Ireland, and Edmund, the son of Earl Roger, was too young in the beginning of Henry's reign to be written to by Ormonde on matters of State, even were he not the son of the man acknowledged by Richard to be the heir to the Crown which Henry had just assumed. The period is also fixed by the mention of the [half] brothers of Richard II.

³ The Patents of Ormonde's appointment (the first of which belongs to the 15th although enrolled in the 16th year of the King) are as follows:—

Pro Comite Dormondie.

Sciatis quod nos de fidelitate circumspicione et industria dilecti et fidelis nostri Jacobi Buteler, Comitis Dormondie, plenius confidentes, commisimus ei officium Justicie nostre Hibernie et terram nostram Hibernie cum castris et aliis pertinentiis suis, habendum et custodiendum per unum annum integrum in festo Nativitatis Sancti Johannis Baptiste proximo futuro incepturum, juxta formam cujusdam indenture inter nos et ipsum Comitem inde confecte. The Patent and this Letter under the Privy Seal were transmitted by the hands of John Elyngham, Sergeant at Arms, and reached the Earl at his castle of Carrick-on-Suir on Thursday, October the 8th.¹ He immediately wrote to the Bishop of Meath announcing his appointment, and requesting that, as he had to attend a parley with Mac Murrough at Tillaghin Offelmythe (Tulow, co. Carlow) on the Monday following, the Bishop would summon a Great Council to meet at Castledermot in order to consult about the public safety, feeling that the burden of Governor imposed on him was a heavy and difficult task on account of the miserable condition of the land. At this Great

¹ Amongst the Ormonde manuscripts at Kilkenny Castle is preserved the letter which Ormonde wrote to the Bishop of Meath on receipt of the King's Letters and Patent. It is written on a strip of parchment measuring 14 by 4 inches. The seal, originally attached to a narrow strip cut from the parchment, is lost, and the letter, which has suffered from damp at one margin, is as follows:—

[TRANSLATION.]

Reverend Father in God and most honourable Lord. We salute you with all our heart, and please you to understand that on this Tuesday last past, that is on the 8th day of October, there came to us to our castle of Carryck John Elyngham, Sergeant-at-arms of our Lord the King, bearing and transmitting to us a Patent to be Justice of Ireland, and other Letters given under the Privy Seal of our said Lord the King touching that matter. And that we ought with your advice, and the advice of the most reverend Father in God, the Archbishop of Dublin, and others of the Council of our said Lord the King in these parts, to ordain as best we could about the government of the said land; which charge seems to us very difficult, nor are we at all able to undertake it, in the condition that the said land is in at present, neither do we know how we can bear it without great dishonour and destruction to our poor and simple estate. For which reason, as well as on account of this parley fixed at Tillagh in Offemyth between us and M^cMorough, we wish to be there on Monday next. Wherefore reverend Father in God and most honoured Lord, we counsel and pray you to order and appoint a Council to meet at Tristledermot or elsewhere at your honourable pleasure, and that all who are of the King's Council, and others, the more considerable persons of the Counties and Cities of these parts, be there to take [counsel] on the whole case, as well on the matters above mentioned as for the safety of the land. May the Holy Spirit have you, reverend Father in God and most honoured Lord, always in his most holy and safe keeping. Written at our said castle of Carryck, the 9th day of October.

Yours, the Earl of Ormonde.

To the Reverend Father in God,
the Lord Bishop of Meath[. . .]

Clane on 5th of that month, and at Kilkenny on the 9th. He remained at Carrick-on-Suir from the 11th to the 15th, on which day he went to New Ross, and from thence by Waterford back to Carrick-on-Suir on the 16th, and at his castle there spent his Christmas. The Earl was at Waterford on the 31st December, and remained there until January 12th 1393. We find him at Kilkenny on the 21st, at his newly acquired Castle, where a Parliament was assembled about the 27th of that month, which detained him there for some time as he did not leave until February the 20th. By March 2nd, the Lord Justice had reached Trim, and was at Drogheda on the 11th and 12th. He was at Dublin on the 16th, and again at Trim on the 18th of the month, and remained to the 27th, on which day we find him again at Drogheda, remaining until the 30th. The 1st of April found the Lord Justice at Trim, and he was there until the 16th; from the 23rd to the 25th he was at Dublin, and again at Drogheda on the 29th of that month, as appears by an entry which is the latest in date, although not the last, on the Roll. The Patent and Close Rolls of Chancery show that the Earl was at Kilkenny on the 26th of April, at Naas May the 12th, at Carlow on the 16th and 18th, and at Naas again on the 22nd. As Lord Justice he attests records at Dublin on the 29th and on June the 3rd; he was at Naas on the next day, and back to Dublin on the 12th of that month.

In July 1393, Thomas of Woodstock, Duke of Gloucester, had been appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, but as he never came over, the Earl of Ormonde continued to act as Lord Justice. He was at Kilkenny on November the 19th in that year, where he tested a writ directed to the Seneschal of the Liberty of Wexford, stating that he purposed to spend the ensuing Christmas at Ross, and ordering the Seneschal, under the penalty of one hundred pounds, to provide the supplies needed for his lodging

(hospicium suum)¹ there. That the Earl of Ormonde held office until Richard's arrival in person seems almost certain.² He summoned a Parliament at Kilkenny on February the 14th 1394, but the King's affairs requiring his presence at Munster it did not meet, and there is proof that he was Lord Justice up to March 1st.³ It is, however, stated that Sir Thomas le Scrope was appointed Deputy in July.⁴

Richard II. landed in Ireland on the 2nd of October 1394, accompanied by many of the highest nobles of England, and with an army of 4,000 knights and esquires, and 30,000 archers. The Earl of Ormonde joined the King at Waterford, immediately after his debarcation at that port;⁵ and conducted an unsuccessful expedition against the O'Connors of Offaly. Nearly all Ireland, outside Leinster, excepting the seaport and principal corporate towns, may be said to have been at this time independent of English rule. Of the conquering Anglo-Norman leaders amongst whom Ireland was divided two centuries before, and who had dislodged the Irish from the plains and fertile lands, there remained represented in the male line but the Earls of Ormonde, Kildare, and Desmond. Even in Leinster Art Mac Murrough, assuming the kingly title, openly defied the English power. But though Richard, at the head of an army almost equal to that which conquered at Crécy, was unable to recover what was lost by the resurgence of the natives, yet he won a seeming submission from their chiefs, who felt his power, and acknowledged him as Sovereign, or, in the Irish sense, "Ardrigh." Richard laid aside the standard of England and raised the banner of Edward the Confessor. This "was very pleasing to the Irish . . . who paid their homage in like manner as was done to Saint Edward." "Four of the most potent kings in Ireland" and many chieftains submitted to the English monarch, "but more from love and good-humour, than by battle or force." Ormonde, "who understood and spoke Irish well," and was known to O'Neill, O'Brien, O'Connor, and Mac Murrough both in peace and war, took infinite pains to induce these provincial Kings to come to Dublin. Richard offered to knight them, and they assented; although, as they said, being king's sons, they were knights already from their boyhood. Henry Castide—an English squire, who some years before, on an expedition led by the Earl against the Mac Murroughs, was taken prisoner, had married the daughter of his captor, a chief of that sept, and long dwelt amongst them more from liking than from force—was appointed their attendant; and Ormonde himself prepared them for the order of knighthood which Richard conferred on them after they had complied with all the rules of chivalry.¹

It appears by the tests in the Irish Patent and Close Rolls of the 18th year of his reign, that Richard was frequently at Kilkenny in the spring of 1395. The Earl of Ormonde was amongst those summoned to a Great Council held there shortly after Easter in that year,² and it was probably on this occasion that the King stood sponsor to Ormonde's second son, who was named Richard³ after his Royal godfather.

The King returned to England in May 1395, leaving the next in succession to the Crown, Mortimer, Earl of

In 1397, Ormonde accompanied the Lord Lieutenant against the O'Byrnes, whose country they wasted, and took the principal house of their chieftain; but the Earl of Marche was shortly after slain in a fray with them and the O'Tooles at Kellistown, in the present county of Carlow. At the time of Richard's second expedition Ormonde was in England and accompanied him when he landed in Ireland on June 1, 1399.¹

Henry IV., in the third year of his reign, made the Earl of Ormonde Constable of Ireland. In 1404, he was elected to the Justiceship by the Council on the sudden departure of Sir Stephen Le Scrope, the Lord Deputy,² and in this office, notwithstanding his request

Most honoured Lords, I commend me to you as entirely as I know or am best able in all ways and due respects. Most honoured Lords, touching the estate of the land of Ireland, I and all the [liege people] there, are in great discomfort and evil case on account of the absence of my most honoured Lord Thomas of Lancaster, son of our most sovereign Lord the King, Seneschal of of England and Lieutenant[.] by reason that my Lord Stephen Lescrope, his Deputy there, took his departure from the said land so suddenly, without the advice of the Council of our Lord the King aforesaid there and hearing what they might say, leaving the said land devoid and bereft of government, whereby the Irish enemy were greatly comforted, and many troubles and grievances began to arise in various parts of the said land. Whereon the sage and honourable Council there of our Lord the King assembled at a Common Council there, where the more eminent and greater Prelates, Lords, and Commons of the same land, by their united advice, considering the great mischiefs and perils of the said land, imposed on me, against my wish, the office of the Justiceship and government of the said land, on the homage and faith which I ought to bear towards our sovereign Lord the King aforesaid; which charge I could not eschew or refuse for the causes aforesaid, although I [am] poor, unable and insufficient to support such a charge on account of the great expenditure which I have made and sustained, as well lately in the time of our Lord the King that now is, as also before that, in the time of King Richard his predecessor, beyond my simple power; and the poor lieges there so feeble, and nothing in the Treasury to bear the said charge, to the great injury and ruin of myself and my estate. Thereon praying that it would please you most honoured Lords to take this into consideration, and to stir up our most sovereign Lord the King quickly to take order in sufficient manner for the government of the held a Parliament in Dublin. He was acknowledged by the Irish Annalists to have been "head of the prowess of Erin."¹ The Earl died at his Castle of Gowran, after returning from an invasion of the O'Connor's country.

Being so much connected with the Government of Ireland, it is not surprising that some of its Records should have passed into the Earl of Ormonde's keeping; and considering the fate which has befallen the early Records of the King's Council in Ireland, it would have been fortunate had others of the same nature been preserved in the muniment room at Kilkenny Castle. Although not its legitimate place of custody, the existence of the Roll there is not difficult of explanation when we recollect that the condition of Ireland at that period rendered it absolutely necessary that the representative of the crown, be he Lord Lieutenant, Lord Deputy, or Lord Justice, should be in a great degree itinerant,² visiting the various districts where his presence was required as chief governor. It is a matter of certainty that the members of King's Council constantly attended the chief governor in his movements. Wherever a Great Council was summoned, they formed a part of it. They were present wherever a Parliament was held. Dublin, the capital of the Island, was no doubt their usual place of meeting, and there the Records of the Council ought ordinarily and regularly be preserved; it is easy to conceive, however, that at some period towards the close of the Earl of Ormonde's office of Lord Justice which he held to within a few months of, if not up to, the arrival of Richard on the occasion of his first visit to Ireland, the Council may have met (as we know from the Roll itself it frequently did meet) at Kilkenny, and the Lord Justice would naturally convene it in the great hall of his Castle of Kilkenny.¹ There the Roll might have been left for safe custody and never removed to Dublin, having possibly been forgotten during the troubled years that ensued. But in what way soever occurring, it cannot be regretted that the Roll should not have been laid up in its legitimate place of custody. Had it been so, it most likely would have perished when the Council Office in Dublin, with nearly all the Records it contained, was destroyed by fire A.D. 1711,² even if it had not been lost, as were the earlier Council Books, at previous periods.³

The existence of this Roll was unknown down to the year 1850, when the Editor, by permission of the late Marquis of Ormonde, was given free access to the muniment room at Kilkenny Castle. In the course of his researches there was found a Roll of considerable length, consisting of skins of parchment stitched together⁴ and written chiefly in French, with a few entries in Latin. On examination it proved to be for land. "Calendar of State Papers, Ireland, 1603-6," Introduction, p. lxix. Sir John Davys states that the earliest Council Book in Ireland in the reign of James I. was of the 32nd year of Hen. VIII. The Duke of Ormonde writing to the Earl of Arlington in 1667, says that Sir William FitzWilliam, returning from the government of Ireland carried away with him the Council Books "to Henry the Eighth's time," and infers that they were then in the possession of Earl FitzWilliam. — Carte MSS., Bodleian Library.

(the greater part a record of the petitions presented to the Lord Justice and Council of Ireland, with the Answers and Orders, bearing date in the 16th year of Richard II. The Roll had been somewhat injured by damp on the outside, and one membrane, if not more, was missing at the commencement, where the marks of stitching were apparent; there was no general heading, and the writing began in the middle of a petition. Nothing seemed wanting at the end, as a space of three inches was left blank which showed no indication of having been stitched to further skins of parchment. The commencement of the Record was in so fragile a condition, that it suffered injury every time it was unrolled. It was therefore resolved by Lord Ormonde to take the Roll asunder and get it strongly bound in large folio size, lining the decayed membranes with linen. This was done by a careful and expert book-binder under the Editor's inspection, and the following certificate, entered by him at the time, stands at the commencement of the volume:—

“ I hereby certify that the several parts of the ensuing document follow in the same sequence as in the original rotular form; and the reason of my knowledge is that I took asunder the Roll, numbering each skin as separated from the remainder, and also each portion of a skin when it was necessary so to divide the same, and that I have examined the several pages of this book, and find that the binder has faithfully observed the order in which I delivered the parchments to him.

It may be mentioned here that the folios are all mounted on linen guards, and that no part of the parchment has been inserted into the back, and none cut away at the fore-edge, top, or bottom, of the volume.

Whether the Roll, as originally written by the Clerk of the Council,¹ commenced with the sixteenth regnal year of Richard II., in June 1392, or with the time of Ormonde's appointment as Lord Justice on May 31st of that year, it is now impossible to know. The enrolments terminate, without any sign of imperfection, on April 25th, 1393, so that the regnal year is not completed. The Roll, as it at present exists, comprises two hundred and fourteen entries, written on twenty-one membranes or skins of parchment, which are on an average $11\frac{1}{4}$ inches wide. The Clerk who made the enrolments seems often to have engrossed the petitions before they were considered by the Lord Justice and Council, leaving a space for the endorsements or answers, which, in a few cases, were never enrolled, having been, perhaps, never endorsed on the original petitions. In no case is there a date to be found in the petitions themselves, but this is supplied by the endorsements when enrolled, and hence several of the dates are not consecutive: the 4th of November, for instance, coming after the 3rd, and the 20th of February after the 4th of March, &c. Sometimes the spaces left for the endorsement are too small, and these entries are much crowded. Frequently the entries of the endorsements are in a hand and ink different from the petition, as in Nos. 102 and 103. There is a change of handwriting in several portions of the Roll, but not more than two scribes were employed, although some parts are written much more carefully

Nangle was Clerk of the King's Council in 1472.—See p. lxxiv infra. The earliest mention of Clerk of the Council in England is in 1422.—"Proceedings, &c. of the Privy Council in England," Vol. III., p. 18; see also Vol. I. Preface, p. xvii, where it is inferred that John Prophete was Clerk of the Council in 1390.

than others. The Fiant, Warrants, Writs, &c. entered on the Roll are mostly in Latin, as are also the Privy Seals; some of them are, however, in French. The Petitions with their endorsements are invariably in the latter language.¹

The value of the manuscript as serving to throw light on the history of Ireland at a period of which so little is known was fully understood by the late Marquis of Ormonde, whose untimely death arrested its intended publication. Some years after, it was selected to form one of the series of Chronicles and Memorials of Great Britain and Ireland; and the Marchioness of Ormonde, on the part of her son, the present Marquis, then a minor, consented to the printing of the Roll, and permitted the Editor to retain it in his keeping, whilst the work was passing through the press, for the purpose of collation; also allowing him to make further search amongst the Ormonde manuscripts for documents serving to illustrate the history of the Council, several of which will be found in the Appendix. An exhaustive examinaseized the 2nd Duke of Ormonde's estates the archives were packed in "two large Chests and fyveteene Barrells" and sent to London to the Duke from Kilkenny by Mr. Valentine Smith, his agent. (Letter of James, 2nd Duke of Ormonde.—See "Transactions of the Kilk. Archæol. Society, vol. I., p. 268.) The retreating Irish, after the Boyne, wished to burn the Castle, but the French General, de Lauzun, saved it. The Duke of Ormonde, receiving it uninjured, brought back all the manuscripts to their original place of keeping, and from that day to this they have remained there. The custody of the Roll from the period to which it refers to the present may, therefore, be satisfactorily traced, and its authenticity established.

tion enables the Editor to state that no other documents bearing on the early proceedings of the King's Council in Ireland¹ remain amongst the Ormonde manuscripts. A fac-simile of four of the entries on the Roll (No.101-4, pp. 108-112 infra) is prefixed to this volume.

Of the documents printed in the Appendix the two first, which are in French, are connected in time and subject with the Council Roll, one being a letter from King Richard II. to Alexander de Balscot, Bishop of Meath, the Keeper of the Great Seal, and the rest of the Council of Ireland, informing them that he had discharged the Duke of Gloucester from the Lieutenancy of Ireland, and appointed the Earl of Marche in his place, in whose absence he had made the Earl of Ormonde Lord Justice. The other is a letter from the King to the Earl of Ormonde himself, informing him that he had appointed him Lord Justice until such time as the Earl of Marche should go to Ireland. In both documents the appointment of the Archbishop of Dublin as Lord Chancellor is announced.

The third document, also in French, which, as well as the two preceding ones, is preserved in the Cotton MSS. in the British Museum, is a communication from the Governor or Guardian of Ireland, Bishop Alexander de Balscot, and the Council, to Henry IV. It throws considerable light on the state of Ireland immediately after 1669. Most of the answers to the petitions are dated at Dublin Castle, but some were considered at Kilkenny Castle. They relate to the period of the chief governorships of James, 1st Duke of Ormonde, and of his son the Earl of Ossory, as his Deputy. There is also extant amongst the manuscripts at Kilkenny Castle a large mass of the original Petitions, with the Answers endorsed on them.

the deposition of Richard II., to which period it must be referred, as Balscot, Bishop of Meath, was Guardian of Ireland for two months after the accession of Henry. This has been already printed, but it is given in the Appendix from the original, as it is the only known record of the proceedings of the King's Council in Ireland at this important crisis.

The fourth article in the Appendix is an Inspeximus of an enrolment in Chancery, and relates to the period when, in 1404, as already stated (p. xxi supra), the Earl of Ormonde was elected Lord Justice by the Council, after Sir Stephen le Scrope, Deputy to Thomas of Lancaster, "ran away" (p. 272 infra) without consulting the Council, or providing for the Government in his absence. This is printed from the original Patent preserved in the muniment room at Kilkenny Castle, and illustrates the constitution of the Great Council. The prelates, magnates, chief men, clergy, and commons meet,¹ by summons, before the Lord Justice and King's Council, thus constituting the Great Council, which grants a subsidy for the expenses of the Government. The enrolment is not now to be found in the Patent Rolls of Chancery in Ireland.

The fifth document is printed in the Appendix from the original in the Cotton MSS., British Museum. James, the fourth Earl of Ormonde, was but fourteen years of age at his father's death in 1405.² His wardship was granted that same year to Henry the Fourth's second son, Thomas of Lancaster, then Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. In 1407 the young Earl accompanied the Lord Deputy, Sir Stephen le Scrope, in a successful expedition against the Irish of Leinster, defeating MacMurrough, O'Nolan, and O'Carroll with great slaughter.

² Ormonde, whose mother was a daughter of John Lord Welles, came of age in the 13th year of Henry IV., which extended from September 30, 1411, to September 29, 1412. See p. 281 infra.

His father had given him a good education, and it is evident that he was qualified, at a very early age, to take part in public affairs. Had we not certain proof it would seem almost incredible that in his sixteenth year he should be entrusted by the King with the government of Ireland.¹ As Deputy he held a Parliament at Dublin during the spring of 1408. In the following July the Lord Lieutenant, Prince Thomas of Lancaster, came to Ireland in person: he was received by the Lord Deputy, his ward,² and sworn into office on the second of August. Ormonde, then seventeen, won the Prince's friendship, and accompanied him on his return to England in 1410. In the autumn of the next year,³ when just of age, he followed Prince Thomas, then Duke of Clarence, to France, and probably fought under him at Agincourt in 1415. On the second invasion of France in 1417 Ormonde, "with a grete mayne," served under Henry in person, and in 1418 took a leading part in the siege of Rouen,⁴ where he was posted next Clarence in the leager.

² The grant of wardship to Thomas of Lancaster commits all the castles, manors, lands, &c. of the minor to him without account, but provides that he shall find him competent support. Rot. Pat. 7 Hen. IV. 69. It is probable that the education of the young Earl, so well begun by his father, had not been neglected by his guardian.

He was in great favour and credit with the King and, returning with him to England, was made in February 1420 Lord Lieutenant of Ireland for two years from the time of his landing in Ireland.¹ The Earl arrived in Waterford on the 4th April, where two of his cousins fought an appeal of battle before him, whereat one was killed and the other carried to Kilkenny sore wounded. He held a Parliament in Dublin in June. He was very successful against the Irish both of Leinster² and Ulster, and was continued in the Lieutenancy under Henry VI. until the appointment of Edmund Mortimer, Earl of Marche, in 1423, to whom he was Lord Deputy in 1424 and 1425. On April 15th, 1427, Ormonde was made Lord Justice with a fee of 500*l.* per annum, but on August 1st surrendered the sword to Sir John de Grey.³ He accompanied the young King⁴ to France in 1431, and the King came before Rouen on the Friday before Lammas Day, and—

² With a much inferior force he gave a crushing defeat to the O'Mores of Leix, “in the Red Bog of Athy,” A.D. 1420; in which year he also reduced to submission Mac Murrough, whom all Leinster had been unable to resist.—“Grace's Annals,” sub an.

³ Rot. Claus. 5 Hen. VI., part I., 1, 2. “Life of the Duke of Ormonde,” Vol. I., Introduction, p. xxxix. In 1428 he was highly commended to the King for his services by the Parliament held that year before the Lord Lieutenant, Sutton Lord Dudley. There were anonymous articles sent to England contravening this, which were immediately and indignantly repudiated by the Lord Lieutenant and Council. Rot. Claus. 7 Hen. VI. m. 9 and 18.

⁴ Was Dame Alice Botiller, governess to Henry VI., of Ormonde's kindred? By letter of the Regent and Council appointing her, in 1424, when Henry was three years old, she had licence reasonably to chastise him from time to time when necessary: her salary was 40*l.*, and she received 40 marks a year more was present at Henry's coronation in Paris. At this time his first wife, daughter to the Earl of Kildare, died without issue, and he married soon after Elizabeth, widow of John Lord Grey, and daughter to William Beauchamp, Lord Bergaveny, through the will of whose mother, Joan Lady Bergaveny, Ormonde's eldest son succeeded to such large possessions in England that he became a powerful English nobleman, being created Earl of Wiltshire in 1449, his father being yet alive.

The complete reduction of Ireland, which Richard II., notwithstanding his two expeditions, failed in accomplishing, would probably have been successful had Henry V. devoted thereto his energy and ability, instead of being led away to the more dazzling but fruitless conquest of France. Ormonde felt that the cost and forces vainly expended to maintain the conquest there would secure the complete reduction of Ireland, and the author of "The Libel of English Policy," written about the year 1436, states that he had suggested it:—

was the Erle of Ormonde that

But in iij. or iiij. gadred up here.
Myght wynne Yrelonde to a fynalle conquest,

Lord Welles came to Ireland as Lord Lieutenant in 1438; but only making a short stay, the Earl of Ormonde was appointed his Deputy, which office he held in 1426. — "Proceedings, &c. of Henry IV. was Margaret Taaf, an with a short intermission until the early part of 1442. Whilst Deputy he held a Parliament at Dublin on the 16th of November, 1441; and it appears from the sixth document printed in the Appendix that he must have been appointed Lord Lieutenant in the room of Lord Welles before the 5th of June 1442, for he is at that date termed "Locumtenens Domini Regis." His tenure of these offices is thus stated in the record of the Great Council held at Drogheda on June 26th, 1444, viz., "for one year Deputy to Lord Welles, and for two years and more Lieutenant of the King himself" (see p. 308 infra). This places Ormonde's appointment as Lord Lieutenant some time before June 1442, which is a year before the date given by Ware, and generally accepted. It is probable, however, that a still earlier date should be fixed, for a letter from the King to the Chancellor of Ireland,¹ dated on the 24th of the previous March, which mentions Ormonde as having been Deputy when the Parliament was held in Dublin in November 1441, clearly implies that the Earl had been appointed Lord Lieutenant a considerable time before the reception of the message sent by that Parliament. Archbishop Talbot, and White, Abbot of St. Mary's, Dublin, had gone to England early in 1442 with the message alluded to and answered in this letter; but the Archbishop and his fellow "messengers" were also the bearers of a representation agreed on by a strong party in that Parliament, led by Archbishop Talbot, and hostile to Ormonde, and the Archbishop himself seems to have been the author of this fifth article of the Appendix, there printed from a contemporary MS. in the Cotton Collection, which is now imperfect at the commencement. It has been already given in the Appendix to the fifth volume of the "Proceedings, &c. of the Privy Council in England" (p. 317), where the lacunæ are filled up from a modern transcript in the Additional MS. 4793, fol. 10 b, the completed heading of which runs as follows:—

"In these articles following is showed by Richarde, Archbuschop of Develin, one of the messageres of the londe of you Soverain Lorde of Irelande, as in substance for asmoche as longethe him for to shew y^e cause why it is nether prouffitable to you Soverain Lorde nor for the welfare of your saide lande that the Erlle of Ormonde be Lieutenaunt of the same londe." The Editor, Sir Harris Nicholas, was of opinion that these Articles should be placed in Nov. 1441; but it would appear more likely that they were of a somewhat later date, as the internal evidence shows them to have been presented after Archbishop Talbot and his fellow messengers arrived in England early in 1442, for they remonstrate against Ormonde's appointment as Lord Lieutenant, and suggest that he should be superseded, and the Archbishop represents that if it had seemed good to the Lords and Commons in the late Parliament assembled to have him for their governor, they would not have asked to have a powerful English noble sent to govern Ireland,¹ and have passed over Ormonde, who was there present as Deputy to Lord Welles—nay, that his appointment was deprecated by the Gentlemen and Commons—and he was in consequence bound by strict indenture to "kepe the peas, and be at goode rule during the tyme that he were Depute to the saide Lieutenaunt." The Articles also state that he was aged, unwieldy, and feeble, and having in consequence been unable to defend his own castles, towns, and lordships, most of which were lost for lack of labour, was not likely to keep, conquer, or gain any for the King. He had made Irishmen and his grooms and pages of his household knights of the shire to support him in Parliament, and was guilty of certain specified illegal acts of tyranny and oppression. He was impeached of many acts of treason by the Earl of Marche, Lord Grey, and Lord Talbot, which as yet stood undetermined. There were other misdeeds of the Earl which the Archbishop might not declare because of his "order," but Lord Welles, Lord Dudley, and Sir Thomas Stanley, sometime Lieutenants of Ireland, and Giles Thorndon, the Lord Treasurer, if summoned before the King, would prove them. These representations were not without effect, as appears by the following memorandum of the orders of the English Privy Council held "in y^e Kynges Gret Chambre at Shene," August 20th, 1442:¹—

"As touching Irlande. The Lieutenaunt of Irlande to be sende for to come hider in alle haste.

"Tharchbisschope of Dyvelynn to abide.

"Indifferent men toccupie.

"Giles Thorndoun, Treasurer of Irlande, to come before þe Kyng and to be sworene which bethe moost indifferent men in Irlande toccupie þoffice [as] deputies, and also to gyve up in articles alle þ^t he wol write for þe Kinge and ayenst any other persones."

The Treasurer's report, which is extant and has been printed in the "Proceedings, &c. of the Privy Council of England" from a contemporary MS. in the Cotton Collection, is an able and impartial one, and does not bear unduly on either party.²

² The first article of Thorndon's report, refers to the feud between Ormonde and the Talbots:—

"It is knowene of the discorde, parcialtee, and division wiche ys in the lande of Irlande, and longe hathe contynuede bytwene þe Erle of Ormonde and his affinitee, one þat partie, and the Lorde Talbot and

The King, although he did not recall Ormonde, which the Archbishop had declared to be a necessary preliminary to ensure an impartial inquiry, yet sent over a letter under the Privy Seal to inquire into the charges against him. To this and Archbishop Talbot's articles the sixth document printed in the Appendix from the original Letters Patent preserved in the muniment room at Kilkenny Castle relates. The Patent Rolls of the Chancery of Ireland between the 13th and 28th of Henry VI. are not extant, so that it affords the only evidence of the of those facts to which it refers. It gives the names present at the King's Council, held in the Council Chamber of the Monastery of St. Mary of Trim, on the 5th of June 1442, before the Lord Lieutenant, who having in vain demanded¹ from the Lord Chan-

the Archebysshoppe of Divelyne his brother, on þat othere partie setthe the seide Gyles hath be Tresorere there; þere hath be soche partie sitting in the Kynges Counseille and in alle his courtes þere þat no matere for the Kynges availle ne for sente of partie may have due processe ne execucioun in lawe where it touchethe ony of the seide ij. parties; to grete hyndering to oure saide Sovereine Lorde and to alle his seide lande, as it apperede by a parlement there now late holdene, and so it is lyke to contynue, lesse thane remedye therefore be purveyede." "Proceedings, &c. of the Privy Council of England," Vol. V., p. 321. About the year 1428, Swayne, Archbishop of Armagh, in a letter to the English Government, thus alludes to the origin of the quarrel:—

"When my Lord Talbot was in this contre there was grete warriours betwene hym and my Lorde of Ormonde, and yet they be noght acordede, and some gentylmen of the contre ben well wyllede to my Lorde of Ormonde, they hold with him . . . and be noght well willed to my Lorde Talbot, nor to none that love hym, and they that love my Lorde Talbot done in the same maner to my Lorde of Ormonde and so all the land is severed. More harme is, both jentylmen and communes they love noght othir nor helpe not othir; and this debate betwixt these thwey lordes is cause of the gret harmes that be do in this contre." Primate Swayne's Registry, Muniments of the See of Armagh. See Gilbert's "Viceroy's," p. 573.

cellor Wogan, a member of the Council, the articles sent to him by the King under his Privy Seal, they were read from a copy procured from another source, and the Earl of Ormonde requested the Council, excepting the Chancellor, to retire and consider whether the said articles were true, and what answer they should return to the King as their testimony thereon. Whereon retiring to another apartment of the Monastery, and having fully considered the charges, they returned to the Council Chamber, and by the mouth of Edward Somerton, Serjeant-at-Law, as their Prolocutor, gave their unanimous answer to the effect that they had never heard that any articles had been considered or desired by the Parliament alluded to relative to sending over an English nobleman as Lord Lieutenant. That it was not true that the Earl had made Irishmen and grooms and the pages of his household Knights of the Shire, or taken fines to excuse the non-attendance of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal at Parliament; that they had never heard that the majority of the Parliament had desired that he should be bound by indenture for his good behaviour when he was made Deputy to Lord Welles. And then in full Council, the Chancellor being present, the article which accused the Earl of having caused Philip Stoye, Prior of Conal, to be imprisoned in the Castle of O'Dwyre, an Irishman and the King's enemy, where he was treated with great "duresse," and forced to pay a ransom of 100 marks, being read, the said Prior appeared in person and totally disproved the allegation, whilst the Earl also cleared himself of two other similar charges. On the same day, before the Council, to the charge that he was old, unwieldy, and unfit for active exertion, the Earl replied that he was ready to leave that matter to the King's own judgment, and to appear before him in person whenever he was pleased to send for him; and as to the insinuation that he was not likely to keep the King's castles, towns, or lordships, or recover the same for His Majesty, seeing that for lack of labour he had lost all his own, the Earl replied that it was well known to the whole of Ireland that he had kept all the castles, towns, and lordships, which on his coming of age in the 13th year of Henry IV., he had received out of the King's hands, in as good state and better than they were delivered to him.¹ And lastly, as to the charge that the Earl of Marche, Lord Grey, and Lord Talbot had in time past impeached the Earl of many great treasons, which stood yet undetermined, the Lord Lieutenant stated before the Council that the Earl of Marche had never impeached him, or proposed anything against him; the Earl of Marche and Lord Grey were now dead, but if Lord Talbot, who was still alive, or any one in the name of the deceased Lords Marche and Grey wished to make any accusation of treason against him, he was ready to defend and clear himself by his own hand, when and where the King should appoint. This document is partly in English and partly in Latin.

The seventh article in the Appendix is a letter, in English,² from the Chancellor, Richard Wogan, to Henry VI., stating that he was charged by the King to report in as secret a way as possible on the articles against the Earl of Ormonde, and that he had refused to divulge them before the Council when required by the Earl; but that, notwithstanding, having been surreptitiously communicated to the Lord Lieutenant, they had been brought before the Council and the Earl excused of part of them, but that this arose from dread of him as Lord Lieutenant; and that of part thereof the Earl had not been excused, and that although he had been unwilling to have the proceedings thereon enrolled yet that Robert Dyke, Clerk of the Rolls, had done so, being in fear of his life if he refused, and that the exemplification thereof had been most unwillingly sealed by him as Chancellor,¹ but he was told by the Council that he must do so as they had been enrolled. He begs the King to enable him to appoint a deputy if the Earl "be not better lorde" to him than hitherto.

Ormonde was not, on this occasion, recalled, and Henry made known to both sides his will that the discords between them, so prejudicial to the realm, should cease. An order was made under the Privy Seal that the Earl and the Archbishop should appear in England, at the Easter of 1443, and answer such complaints as had been put in against them, but the letters, although made and sealed, were withheld by the King's command.²

The eighth document in the Appendix is printed from the original Patent in the Muniment Room of the Marquis of Ormonde, at Kilkenny Castle, and is a sequel to the preceding one. It appears that Richard Wogan, the hostile Chancellor, and one of the Talbot faction, could no longer bear the "heavy lordship" of the Lieutenant, and withdrew to England without consulting the Council or leaving the Great Seal in the hands of a Deputy. On July 21st, 1442, Ormonde held a meeting of the King's Council in the Council Chamber within the Castle of Dublin; nine members of the Council are named, and others are said to be present. At this Council was considered the fact that at a Great Council held at Naas on the Friday next before the feast of the Translation of St. Thomas the Martyr (July 7), when the Chancellor should have by the appointment of FitzEustace in his place, during pleasure, on record elsewhere than in this document.

word of mouth declared and expounded to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons there assembled the cause of summoning the said Council, and the business of the country, as was the custom, he was found to have withdrawn himself suddenly by night, with one attendant only, carrying the Great Seal along with him. Whereon, hearing that he had gone to Dublin, the Lord Lieutenant adjourned the Great Council to that city, and by order of the said Council directed a King's writ to the Chancellor directing him to appear at the said Great Council in Dublin on the Monday after the feast of St. Thomas the Apostle (July 25) with the Great Seal, and show cause of his retirement. In the meantime the Lord Lieutenant and King's Council came to Dublin and made many attempts to communicate with the Chancellor, and at last learned that he had taken ship at Howth for Wales, without delivering up the Great Seal to the Lieutenant or Council, or into the King's Treasury; but in whose custody it was left they could not learn. But proclamation having been made that any one retaining it should on pain of life and goods give it up to the Lord Lieutenant and Council on a certain day, a Friar Preacher named Thomas Nortoun, delivered into the Treasury a casket sealed with a signet, bearing the images of the Crucifixion with St. Mary and St. John, and being questioned by the Council, declared that on the day when he gave up the casket, a certain man had come to him for confession, and amongst other things acknowledged that he had the said casket containing the Great Seal in his keeping, which he delivered because of the proclamation, and so he (Nortoun) deposited it as soon as possible in the Treasury, but refused to say whether the man was a cleric or a layman. The casket, having been opened in the presence of the Lord Lieutenant, the Treasurer, and the rest of the Council, was found to contain the Great Seal enclosed in a leather bag sealed with the same seal as was the casket. Then, at the Council on the same 21st day of July, the seal was delivered to the Lord Lieutenant, who opening it found in each part of the seal fresh white wax, resulting, as it appeared to the Lieutenant and Council, from a recent sealing. It was then sworn by the Keepers of the Rolls and the Hanaper, and by Walter Mape, the Spigurnal or Wax-warmer of the Chancery, and others who were wont to be about the sealings of the said Great Seal, that there was no sign of the said wax when they last saw the seal used. And finally, by the Lord Lieutenant and Council, on the same day, Sir Richard FitzEustace was, according to the custom of the land, appointed Chancellor during pleasure by Letters Patent under the Great Seal to obviate delay in the business of Chancery and the great evils and inconvenience that would arise to both the King and the lieges in the event of the Chancellorship being vacant, and the Great Seal not otherwise available.

The ninth document in the Appendix is printed from a parchment roll preserved in the Muniment Room of the Marquis of Ormonde. It is a contemporary but apparently unofficial copy of an enrolment in Chancery, which is not now to be found on record. On the 27th of October 1442, in the chapel of St. John, within the parish church of St. Peter at Drogheda, the Lord Lieutenant declared before the King's Council, of whom eight are named, and of whom Sir Richard FitzEustace, Knight (no longer Chancellor), was one; that on the 19th of the same month he was informed by messengers from Talbot, Archbishop of Dublin, that he had been made Lord Chancellor by letters patent from the King, and desired to have the Great Seal delivered to him. To this the Lord Lieutenant replied that the Archbishop should receive a fitting answer from him at the Council shortly to be held, for he never acted in important matters without the advice of the King's Council. The Archbishop having appeared accordingly on Friday the 21st, at a Council held by the Lord Lieutenant in the chapel of St. John, within the parish church of St. Peter, Drogheda, declared his appointment, and desired to have the Great Seal delivered to him. Being asked whether he had taken the oath of office, he said that he had, and that it was of record in the Chancery; but not having the record thereof to produce, the Lord Lieutenant said that he proposed holding a Council within eight days, and that he would give him an answer on producing the record. The Council met accordingly on the 27th, and the Archbishop declared by a deputation that he had been appointed Chancellor by the King, by virtue of the Royal Letters Patent, had sat in the Chancery, and, so far as he could, transacted the business of the Chancellorship, and desired that the Great Seal should be delivered to him, as without it he could not fully discharge his office. The reply of the Lord Lieutenant was a persistence in the demand for proof by record; and word was sent to the Archbishop that the Lord Lieutenant and Council would await him there on the afternoon of the same day, but the Archbishop did not comply. On the next day (the 28th) the demand for the Seal was repeated by a constable and esquire of the Archbishop. To this the Lord Lieutenant replied that he had waited in Council all day on the previous Saturday for the required proofs, that the 28th was the Lord's Day, when all should be engaged in divine service and not on secular affairs;¹ but that although he had discharged did not set until his men-at-arms had for six miles the execution of the flying O'Connors; and in 1420 the sun, as for Joshua of old, stood still for three hours whilst the Earl, with a few of his followers, defeated with great slaughter the O'Mores at Athy. These legends would not have found a place in Annals compiled by churchmen if Ormonde was not held to be a religious character.

the Council from attendance he would send round and summon such of them as had not left Drogheda to meet on the next day, when, if the Archbishop attended or produced proof, he would get a fitting answer. The Council met accordingly on the Monday, the 29th, in the vestry of the said chapel of St. John, but the Archbishop did not appear either in person or by messenger.

Whether Archbishop Talbot condescended to show proof of his appointment is not on record, but on the 21st of November in the same year, at a Council held in the King's Council Chamber, within the Monastery of the Blessed Virgin at Trim, seven members of the Council, who are named, being present, the Lord Lieutenant took the extreme step of removing him from the Chancellorship. The charges brought against the Archbishop "inter alia" were that thirteen years before he had contemptuously and peremptorily refused to affix the Great Seal to letters patent appointing a certain lord of the land (probably Ormonde himself) Deputy to Lord Dudley, who was then Lord Lieutenant, and required to pass into England; and this refusal he had contumaciously persevered in, until Lord Dudley consented to appoint as Deputy a nominee of the Archbishop. He was also accused of alienating the King's revenues under the Great Seal, without consulting the Lord Lieutenant or his Deputy, and then had pledged the Great Seal itself for his private use. He had held parley with divers Irish enemies of the King, contrary to the statutes; he had beaten the Treasurer of Ireland, Hugh Banent, and the Keeper of the Rolls of Chancery, Robert Dyke; and shortly after the feast of St. Michael last past, he had received into his manor and palace of St. Sepulchre, in the suburbs of the city of Dublin, and eaten and drunk with, a proclaimed traitor. Being repeatedly required by Privy Seal to appear before the Lord Lieutenant and Council and having been summoned and solemnly called to answer these, as well as other charges which could not be mentioned in deference to his order and dignity, and having with contempt refused to appear, the Lord Lieutenant declared that in the plenitude of the power, and by virtue of the Royal Letters Patent of his Lieutenancy, he seized the Chancellorship into the King's hands. The Archbishop being thus removed from office, Sir Richard FitzEustace, who had been appointed Lord Chancellor by the Lord Lieutenant on the withdrawal of Wogan to England, without appointing a deputy or providing for the custody of the Great Seal, but who had been after a few months superseded¹ by the King's Letters Patent, creating the Archbishop Lord Chancellor, was made Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, and probably held it during the brief remainder of Ormonde's lieutenancy. The following letter to the Council in England, which FitzEustace signs as Lord Keeper, has only the monthly date of April the 25th, but the year may be fixed at 1443, as Richard Wogan was Lord Chancellor in June 1444.² This year is also assigned as its date from internal evidence in the "Proceedings of the Privy Council of England," Vol. V., p. 325, where it has already been printed. The letter is signed by Sir Richard FitzEustace, as Lord Keeper, and by Giles Thorndon, Treasurer, on behalf of the rest of the Council of Ireland, and is as follows :—

² Ware's Table of Governors, &c. See also page 311 infra. The documents now printed supply a blank in Ware's Table between the Chancellorship of Sir Richard Strange in 1441, and that of Wogan in 1444; Richard Wogan having been Chancellor to July 1442, when he was succeeded by Sir Richard FitzEustace : Archbishop Talbot succeeded FitzEustace in a few months by Patent from the King, and was superseded by the Lord Lieutenant in November. FitzEustace appears as Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, at all events, as late as April 25, 1443. In the Table given by Ware the latest record of FitzEustace being Lord Keeper is in the year 1436.

There was no money in the Treasury to pay the constables of the Castle of Dublin, the soldiers, or even the officers of the King's Courts of Law. Although the revenue was insufficient to meet the most necessary demands on it, yet royal grants were made which would further diminish it. The chief seaport towns of Cork, Limerick, and Galway refused to pay their feefarms, cockets, and customs to the Crown, and the only remedy which the Council could suggest was that the ships trading from these towns to English ports should be seized and detained until these dues were paid. The Irish were everywhere pressing on the district round Dublin, which soon had to be fenced against them (see p. lxi. infra), and so came to be called the Pale. As for the rest of Ireland, except in parts of Wexford and Cork, and within the few walled towns, the Earls of Ormonde, Desmond, and Kildare, and their adherents were alone able to hold their districts against the natives. Factious division was rife in Dublin and the Pale; and although the Earl of Desmond for the time took Ormonde's side, the Earl of Kildare and the Leinster Geraldines were of the Talbot party. His allowance unpaid, the Lord Lieutenant had not spared his personal exertions, his own or his friends' means in the discharge of his office, but it is evident that the condition of Ireland under his government must have given weight to the complaints of his opponents. The tenth document in the Appendix, printed from a contemporary paper roll preserved in the muniment room at Kilknenny Castle, illustrates the state of affairs at this time. The Prior of the Military Order of St. John of Jerusalem, cousin to the Earl of Kildare, had incited "his friends the O'Briens and O'Tooles" to capture some of the Brethren of the Order on their way to hold a chapter at Kilmainham; and soon after "the said Thomas Fitz-Gerald increased his malice against" the Lord Lieutenant, who had received a letter from the King under the Privy Seal, dated June 6th, 1443, expressing his confidence in him, and assuring him that he would keep in remembrance his good service, but desiring him to remain in Ireland, in discharge of his office, notwithstanding his wish to repair to the King's presence "for certain matters that touched him." However, early in the following year Ormonde was summoned to England by a Royal letter, dated March 13th, to contrive measures with the King and his Council, and give his advice concerning certain great and chargeable matters touching the King's realm, lordships, and subjects, "whereof the Earl was right glad, and thanked God that he was at liberty to go into England to the King."

Robert Manfelde, Usher of the King's Chamber, was the bearer of the letter, and before he left, and whilst the Lieutenant was arranging for the safe guard of Ireland, and providing shipping for the voyage, the Earl sent Privy Seals, as the custom of that land was, to the Estates and Gentles, Spiritual and Temporal, of the part of that land where he was at that time, praying them to come to the King's town of Drogheda, whilst the said Robert Manfelde was there, that he might take true report to the King of the state of the said land and of the said Earl's governing them. Then follows an Inspecimus of the inrolment in Chancery of the proceedings of the Great Council held accordingly at Drogheda, on the 24th of June, 1444, in the King's Council Chamber, within the Monastery of the Friars Minors. The list of those who attended in obedience to the summons is nearly perfect, and shows the constitution of these Great Councils, held before the Chief Governor and King's Council. It does not contain the name of Archbishop Talbot, who, however, sent a proxy, but it was a fairly representative body for the Pale, i.e., the counties of Dublin and Meath, and part of Kildare and Louth. After deliberating apart for some time, they returned to the Council Chamber, and by the mouth of Sir James Alleyne, their chosen Prolocutor, declared that not one single person could complain of extortion or injury on the part of the Lord Lieutenant, but on the contrary, they gave him their unanimous thanks for his good and gracious government, and declared that he was very necessary to the land, and that in its defence he had endured great and continual labour in his own proper person during the three years and upwards of his government.¹ That he had expended for the King's honour, and in defence of the said land, all the wages he had received from the King, and also the subsidies granted him by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and the Commons of the land, and in addition laid out a great deal of his own means. Lastly, although they felt the great danger incurred by the Lord Lieutenant's immediate departure, they would not venture to advise him to remain, but they besought the Lord Chancellor Wogan, Brother Hugh Middleton, Turcopellarius of Rhodes, and the aforesaid Robert Manfelde, Esquire, or any of them, to repair as speedily as possible to the King's presence, and declare to him the urgent necessity, on account of the great confederancies of Irish enemies and English rebels for the destruction of the King's lieges, that the Lord Lieutenant should remain in Ireland until after the feast of St. Michael next ensuing, in order that the liege people might gather in the grain of the year, and safely bestow it in their barns, to their great comfort, and the confusion of the King's Irish enemies. And, moreover, that they should diligently labour with the King for the speedy return of the Lieutenant to Ireland, all arrears of wages being paid to him, and with a good hope of their punctual payment for the future: all which they prayed might be enacted. Then the Lord Lieutenant ordered that, at their request, the foregoing should be enacted, and remain on record in the Rolls of Chancery.

The King's Council had met at Drogheda six days before (namely, on June 21st), in the vestry of St. Peter's Church; nine members are named as present, amongst whom were Archbishop Talbot and Chancellor Wogan, and before them and Richard Manfelde, the Lord Lieutenant, called on Brother Thomas Talbot, one of the Brethren of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, in Ireland, to declare what he had heard Giles Thorndon, then Treasurer of our Lord the King in Ireland, speak unworthily and calumniously concerning the Lord Lieutenant. Brother Talbot begged humbly to be excused, but being required to speak the truth, in consideration of the tie of relationship which existed between him and the Earl, he declared that he had heard Thorndon in Archbishop Talbot's Palace of St. Sepulchre, near Dublin, desire the said Archbishop to convoke the Commons, and make a sedition against the Lord Lieutenant, and that he himself would be the first to cut off the Earl's head, and bring it in a napkin to the King, because he knew, as he averred, that the King would thank him therefor, and that he would receive a reward of a thousand pounds. And further, that if Thorndon was present and denied these words, that he would avow them to his face, and prove them body to body.

The Earl, shortly after, went to England.¹ He had been preceded by Thorndon, who made many charges against him, and finally he was accused of high treason. The accusation was supported by FitzGerald, the Prior of Kilmainham, who offered to maintain the charge by combat. In the meantime Ormonde had been ordered by the King not to go further than forty miles from London, except "it be to be pilgrimages of Caunterbury." This command of the King the Earl swore to obey. He was subsequently committed to the Tower, pending the trial by combat; but having represented to the King that it was most necessary "before the day of bataile to be hadde in Smythefelde for his brething and more ease ayenst the saide day," that he should be for a time in that neighbourhood, the Duke of Exeter, Constable of the Tower, had orders to conduct him two days before to any place near Smithfield he might choose, and there to have him safely and securely under his keeping. The Prior, who was in the custody of Giles Thorndon, the Treasurer, in the meantime had, by the King's special command, received instruction in certain points of arms; and for his attendance and labours in so doing Philip Treher, fishmonger, received, by an order dated December 28th, 1446, a reward of 20*l*.¹ The lists were made and the field prepared at Smithfield, but when it came to the point the King stopped the combat,² and, having investigated the charge, acquitted Ormonde, issued Letters Patent setting forth that the Earl was faithful in his allegiance, meritorious in his services, whole and unspotted in his fame, and that none should, on pain of the Royal indignation, revive the accusations or reproach his conduct. Archbishop Talbot had been appointed Deputy on Ormonde's recall in 1445, and he was commanded by the Crown to attest officially writs to this effect, and to have them made public in all the towns of Ireland. In the Parliament held before Richard Duke of York, A.D. 1450, the King was "humbly thanked by the most body of his Parliament in this land for the just deliverance of the Earl of Ormonde, upon his accusation in England."³ But although thus fully acquitting Ormonde, the King did not continue him as Lord Lieutenant, and in 1446 Talbot Earl of Shrewsbury was appointed to the viceroyalty.

Ormonde's son, James Earl of Wiltshire, was Lord Deputy to Richard Duke of York in 1451, but he did not himself again hold office. In Mac Firbis's translation of the Annals of Ireland it is asserted that the accusations and crimes for which he was summoned to England and imprisoned were laid to his charge by the English of Ireland. He is described by the same annalists as "the best captaine of the English nation that was in Irland and England in those ages;" and they regarded the drying up of the River Liffey in 1451 as a wonderful portent of his death. The deeds of the last six weeks of his life refute the representations made to the King by his rivals, that he was "unwieldy and unlusty to labour," for, according to the Irish Chronicles, he sacked the fortress of the O'Mulryans in Limerick; took O'Dempsey's castle in Leix; and marched through Offaly and Annaly (Longford), where O'Farrell submitted to him; from thence he overran Cavan and Louth, where the O'Reillys and MacMahons entered into terms. Advancing into Ulster, he caused O'Neill to put away the wife of O'Donnell, whom he had married after the death of that chieftain, and obliged him to take back his former wife, daughter to MacMurrough; thence he proceeded to the town of Ardee, where he died on the 23rd of August 1452, and was buried in St. Mary's Abbey, Dublin. He was much attached to learning,¹ notwithstanding his busy life, and a proficient in the laws of chivalry and heraldry. The College of Heralds in London received lands from him which in the 17th century yielded them 100*l.* annually.

The eleventh article printed in the Appendix, which must be assigned to an earlier date than any of the others, is any man by sorcery or necromancy, the which they think and believe impossible to be performed in art." Original Roll, cap. 30. It is curious that a tradition has preserved this belief of this Earl's necromantic powers, instancing his being able to make his person appear large or small at will.—The Duchess of Buckingham's MSS., copy in possession of Lord James Wandesforde Butler.

in French, and is printed from the original (No. 4,528) amongst the Petitions to the King in Council, preserved in the Public Record Office, London. It is a representation from the Lord Justice and Council of Ireland to the King, the date of which, however, it would be impossible to fix with any certainty but for an allusion (p. 213 infra) to the "mainpernors" or bail of the Earl of Desmond, and the measures about to be taken against them as ordered by the English Council. The resumption of Grants of Liberties and lands by Ed. III. in 1331 created great disturbance in Ireland, and the Earl of Desmond, heading the malcontents, had summoned a Parliament at Kilkenny, where articles were framed and sent to the King. Desmond afterwards submitted, and nearly all the lords and chief personages of Ireland became bail for him. Sir Ralph D'Ufford, who was made Lord Justice of Ireland in February 1344, in the following year held a Parliament in Dublin, from which the Earl of Desmond absented himself, and again invited the magnates of Ireland to meet in opposition at Callan, in Kerry. Having been admonished by royal writs, the nobles declined to attend at Callan, whither Desmond, on the day appointed, marched with his followers. The Lord Justice summoning the Irish magnates to join him with their retainers, advanced against the Earl, took his castles, and hanged their defenders. Desmond still continuing refractory, D'Ufford had recourse to the bonds executed in 1333, by which his bail¹ had individually pledged their bodies and lands for the future loyalty of that Earl, whom they bound themselves to produce within two months of the day on which he might be demanded of them by a royal writ. Against these "mainpernors," or bailsmen, D'Ufford proceeded, causing the ruin of very many even of those who had given their aid against Desmond. These proceedings were arrested by the death of D'Ufford on Palm Sunday 1346. Hence the date of this document may be certainly fixed in the year 1345, most probably at or near its close.

The thanks of the Editor are given to many kind friends for aid in the preparation of this volume for the press; but especially are they due to John P. APPENDIX TO INTRODUCTION.

IN the Council Roll of the 16th Richard II., and in several of the documents printed in the Appendix, reference is made to Great Councils. These Great Councils, or Magna Concilia, were summoned by the Chief Governor and not by particular writ from the King, and met before the Governor and King's Council. They resembled Parliaments in this, that they had a representative character, consisting of the "magnates," mayors and provosts of cities and towns, together with the bishops and heads of monastic houses, generally of a district (see p. 305 infra), but sometimes embracing the whole of Ireland, for example, those of the 29th and 33rd Hen. VI., and 1 Ed. IV., as appears from the Rolls of their Ordinances still extant. They granted money : but their Acts are termed Ordinances, not Statutes. An example of their constitution is afforded by the record of the Great Council held at Drogheda on June 26, 1442 (p. 305 infra). The Ordinances of several of these Great Councils¹ are preserved in the Public Record Office (Ireland), but none of them have been printed. Like the Statute Rolls of Parliament, amongst which they are found on record, they are written in French. As an example of these Great Council Rolls, the Ordinances and Acts of the Great Council held at Dublin, before Thomas Earl of Kildare, Deputy to the Lord Lieutenant, Richard Duke of York, on April 23rd, 1455, are here given from the translation in the Public Record Office, Ireland.

5th year of Henry VI. The printed Statute of Ireland comprise only about a fourth of these. The Statute of Kilkenny (40th Ed. III.) has been published from an early MS. at Lambeth by the Irish Archæological Society.

Ordinances and Acts in a certain Great Council of the Lord the King at Dublin, on the Friday next before the Feast of Saint George the [Martyr in the] thirty-third [year of the reign of King Henry the Sixth] before Thomas FitzMorice, Earl of Kildare, Deputy of Richard, Duke of York, Lieutenant[enant of the Lord the King of his Land of Ireland, holden] and concluded, set forth in the form which follows :—

1. In primis [it is ordained] and agreed, by authority of the said Great Council, that Holy Church shall be free and have and enjoy all its franchises, liberties, free usages, and customs without any diminution, as it hath been used heretofore.

2. Likewise it is ordained and agreed that the land of Ireland shall have and enjoy all its liberties, franchises, good usages, and customs as it hath been used heretofore.

3. Likewise it is ordained and agreed that the cities of Dublin and Waterford and the town of Drogheda and all other cities and good towns of Ireland shall have and enjoy all their good customs, liberties, franchises, privileges, and usages as they have had and used heretofore.

4. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, that whereas William Cross, Prior of Foure, hath to farm, by a grant from our Lord the King, for term of his life, the said Priory of Foure, with all the appurtenances, for term of his life,¹ rendering thereout to our said Sovereign Lord iii. shillings and iv. pence yearly, which grant was confirmed in a Parliament which was held before Richard Nugent, Knight, Baron of Delvyn, Deputy of Richard, Duke of York, Lieutenant of our Lord the King, the xxvii. year of the reign of the King that now is, by force whereof the said William hath been peaceably in possession of the said priory, with the appurtenances, until such time as one Edmond Fitz-Symond, clerk, hath sued at the court of Rome, and there hath purchased divers Bulls directed to the Bishop of Ardagh and to the official the Dean of Ardagh and to the Abbot of Grenard, the Irish enemies of the King, [containing] citations and instruments, for being Prior of Foure aforesaid, to the great prejudice and in derogation of our Sovereign Lord the King, his crown and dignity and laws, to the great prejudice and disherision of the King, inasmuch as it is the inheritance of the King, as other alien priories are, and also to the insupportable damage of the said William and final destruction of the said priory, and the most pernicious example that ever occurred in Ireland, and most likely to destroy the English power in this land, the which Edmond FitzSymond, James FitzSymond, gentleman, Gerard FitzSymond, gentleman, Geoffrey FitzSymond, gentleman, Piers FitzSymond, gentleman, Alson Devock of Kilturk, Nicolas O'Mery, Vicar of Tymole, ¹ of the parish of M ¹ and John the premises being considered, it is ordained and established, by authority of the said Great Council, that the said Edmond, James, Gerard, Geoffrey, Piers, Alson, Nicolas, ¹ and John surrender themselves, and every of them surrender himself, at the castle of the King [in Dublin], between this and the Feast of Pentecost next to come, there to remain until such time as he and every of them shall find surety in the Chancery of the King in Ireland, that they nor any of them shall attempt anything against the law hereupon made, nor vex, trouble, molest, nor in any manner aggrieve the said William in the said priory, nor in anything, which if they do not as is aforesaid, that then they and every of them be out of the King's protection, and that their and every of their lands and rents be forfeited to the King; and also all those who shall maintain, assist, or support them shall forfeit to the King their goods and chattels, and make fine and ransom to the King if this appear not as is abovesaid. And it is also ordained and established, by authority of the said Council, that they and every of them shall appear and find security in the form aforesaid for what is by them done, according to the effect of the said Act.

5. Likewise, at the prayer of the Prior and Friars of the Hospital of Saint John of Jerusalem in Ireland, farmers of our Sovereign Lord the King [of] the manors of Leixlip and Chapelizod, the which are held of our Lord the King by service or fee-farm of cx[ii]. pounds xvii. shillings and iv. pence yearly, to be paid at the Feasts of Easter and Saint Michael by equal portions, and afterwards Friar Thomas Talbot, Prior of the said Hospital, and the Brethren of the said Hospital, made and ordained one Thomas Bath, gentleman, as their Receiver General of the said manors for term of his life, as by a deed indented thereof to him, made under the common seal, more fully appears; and the said Thomas granted by the said deed, as attorney of the said Prior and Brethren and their successors, to render an account of the said fee-farm in the Exchequer of the King in Ireland in the name of the said Prior and Brethren and their successors yearly, and them thereof to acquit as often as it was necessary in the said Exchequer, as in the said deed thereof to them made more fully appears. This notwithstanding, the said Prior and Brethren are from day to day harassed for the said fee-farm in the said Exchequer of divers terms, as there of record fully appears in the default of the said Thomas, who hath not accounted for them¹ several years; and also the said Thomas Bath hath suffered the woods of the said Leixlip to be wasted and destroyed, and a water mill hereunto appertaining also to be wasted, to the permanent damage of the said Prior and Brethren. Whereupon, the premises considered, it is ordained, by authority of the said Council, that the said Thomas Bath be discharged of the office of Receiver of the said manor, and the deed aforesaid made to him thereof under their common seal to be void and all therein contained be revoked, annulled, and void in law; and that it may be lawful from henceforth for the Commander of the said Hospital for the time being to levy and receive the issues, rents, and profits of the said fee-farm from term to term and from year to year, and to make due payment to those whom the King hath assigned to be paid thereupon, according to the King's grant to them and every of them in this behalf made, and for the same to account in the said Exchequer as attorney to them, in full discharge of the said Prior and Brethren for ever; and that this Act, in the form aforesaid made, may extend as well for the rents, issues, and profits of the term of Easter last past as for all in time to come, and that the said Thomas shall have his pension out of the said house of Kilmainham, as he had before.

6. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, that whereas the Escheators and Commissioners heretofore wished to seize lands, rents, and services, and not finding their Offices fully enquired, to the intent to have writs which are called De melius inquirendo directed to the Escheators to find the Office fully, and the said Escheators would not find the Office fully if they were not treated according to their wish, to the great hurt of the King's liege people. Where upon, the premises considered, it is ordained, by authority of the said Great Council, that in case any such Office is so taken or hereafter to be taken if the Office be not fully enquired, that then the party aggrieved may sue his traverse or Causa nulla, as the case requires, notwithstanding that the Office be not fully enquired.

7. Likewise, at the prayer of Jane, formerly the wife of Christopher Plunket, Knight, formerly Lord of Killeene, administratrix of the goods and chattels of the said Christopher Plunket, that whereas the said Christopher Plunket, at the special request and prayer of one Christopher Fleming, Baron of Slane, was bound in an obligation of one thousand marks to Bartholomew Batt and Stephen Dirpatrick, for the deliverance of the said Christopher Fleming, then being taken in the Castle of Colmolyn by the said Stephen Dirpatrick, and like to have been delivered into the hands of his great enemies, to his utter and final ruin for ever, unless the said Christopher Plunket had been bound for him in the said obligation of one thousand marks; and thereupon the said Christopher Fleming was sworn upon books and other divers great oaths to the said Christopher Plunket to have him discharged and saved without loss by any mean that should accrue to the said Christopher Plunket by reason of the said obligation; and whereas so it was that the said Stephen Dirpatrick was outlawed in the Common Pleas of trespass, by reason of which outlawry the duty of the said obligation of one thousand marks accrued to the King, and so to my Lord of Ormond as then being Deputy Lieutenant of this land, and for the secure and utter discharge of the penalty of the said obligation the said Christopher Plunket, for ease and profit of the said Christopher Fleming, caused to be satisfied, contented, and paid to my said Lord Ormond and others c. pounds, which is not unknown to all this land, the which Christopher Fleming the said Christopher Plunket, for the great losses aforesaid in his life nor to any other since his death, hath not compensated, satisfied, nor contented, contrary to his oath and promise by him aforesaid made, the which hath caused the said Christopher Plunket to be in such great debt to divers persons, as he was at the time of his death and still is; and that the said Janet hath no remedy at the common law. That in aid and to support, to satisfy, and content the debts of the said Christopher Plunket in discharge of his soul and conscience, it be, by authority of the said Council, enacted, ordained, and established that the said Janet shall recover against the said Christopher Fleming the said c. pounds, and that she, by authority of the said Council, may enter and distrain for the said c. pounds as often as necessity shall require in all the lands and tenements which the said Christopher Fleming or any other person or persons had to his use and profit the day of the said obligation of one thousand marks made by the said Christopher Plunket, or any time since, and the distresses so taken to keep and retain until the said Janet shall be satisfied and contented of the said c. pounds. Whereupon, the premises considered, it is ordained and granted, by the authority of the said Council, that the said Janet have c. marks, to be paid to the said Janet within iii. years next ensuing at the Feasts of Saint Michael and Easter, by equal portions, and that the said Janet may distrain on all the lands and tenements aforesaid for the said c. marcs at the feasts above mentioned, that is to say, for the sum of xi. pounds ii. shillings and iii. pence halfpenny at each term of the years aforesaid, and the said c. marcs so fully paid, that the said Baron be requitted and discharged of the said c. pounds against the said Janet and all others.

8. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, that whereas heretofore divers Commissioners of our Sovereign Lord the King in this land of Ireland, to hear, enquire, and determine of felonies, trespasses, and treasons, had issued process of outlawry against divers men before them indicted, as well against men dwelling in other shires as in the same shire where the Commissioners sit. And forasmuch as before Commissioners there are no common days limited as they are in the King's Bench, they will issue a Capias returnable as this day, and an Alias returnable within two days then ensuing, and a Pluries returnable within two other days then ensuing. And this so done¹ an Exigent, by the which Exigent so awarded, the party unapprised thereof should lose his goods and chattles, and so by such means every man dwelling in extended shires may lose his goods and chattles without being apprised thereof. Whereupon, the premises being considered, it is ordained and established, by authority of the said Council, that any Exigent for the King of felonies or treasons to be awarded shall be void unless it be in the King's Bench. And if it be within Liberties for Lords of the said Liberties, that then it be before their Judges of their Places, and not before Commissioners.

9. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, that whereas divers merchants and men of fishing vessels and other men of this land, are robbed and plundered from day to day on the sea by the King's enemies, that is to say, by Frenchmen, Britons, Scots, and divers other nations, in default of defence had on the sea, to the great impoverishment of the said land. Whereupon, the premises considered, it is ordained and agreed, by authority of the said Council, that whatsoever ship or ships will come and guard the sea between the ports of the north and England, that is to say, between the head of Wicklow and Churstred, shall have of every pack which shall pass the sea iv. pence, and of every keg vi. pence, and of every horse xii. pence, and of every vessel which shall bring the said merchandize xi. pence, and of every boat xi. pence, and of every fisherman and his tackle xi. pence. ceivers of these goods in the port of Dublin, William B¹ merchant, and John B¹, mariner; in the port of Howth, the Lord of Howth and Thomas Gower; and in the port of Malahide, John Cornwalshe, Chief Baron of the King's Exchequer in Ireland, William Oliver, of Malahide; in the port of Drogheda, Peter Clynton and Lawrence Cruys, merchants; and in the port of Wicklow, James Symon and Davy Shyllingford; and in the ports of Bush, Rogerstown, and Port Robert Howth, Esq., and Stephen Whyte, of Rogerstown, to continue for three years.

10. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, forasmuch as divers and many notable Statutes had been made in this land for the common profit of the said land from the viiith year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord the King that now is until this day, whereof none are hitherto estreated into the King's Bench, Common Pleas, nor into the Exchequer, for which reason all the said Statutes are out of memory and unknown, and it is not the better for the making thereof. Whereupon, the premises considered, it is ordained and agreed, by authority of the said Council, that a Commission be granted to James Prendergast and James Cruys to write all those in one roll, and to estreat them into the King's Exchequer, the said James and James taking for their writing of the Statutes of every year from the said viiith year aforesaid to this day xi pence. And that due payment or assignment thereof be to them made by the Treasurer, who now is or in time to come shall be.

11. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, that whereas Irish enemies and English rebels coming by night sometimes to the bridge of Kilmainham, sometimes between the water of the Liffey, between Lucan and Clontarf, into Fingal, rob, kill, and destroy the liege people of the King, so that the parts of Fingal are like to be finally destroyed unless some remedy be ordained thereupon. Whereupon, the premises considered, it is ordained and agreed, by authority of the said Council, that barriers be made sufficiently upon the bridges of Lucan and Kilmainham, and that the Barony of Castlenock and the Cross of Finglas shall stop all fords between the bridge of Lucan and the bridge of Dublin; and the Barony of Coolock, Balrothery and the Cross of Swords and Lusk shall stop all fords and raise trenches upon whosoever land it may be, from the bridge of Dublin to the Island of Clontarf, and all that to be done by the inspection of the Archbishop of Dublin, the Prior of Kilmainham, the Abbot of Saint Mary's Abbey, the Prior of Christ Church, Christopher St. Lawrence, Lord of Howth, Robert Donald, Justice, Sir Robert Burnell, Knight, John Cornwalsh, Chief Baron, Robert Howth, Esquire, Richard Tyrrell, of Powerstown, Reynold Talbot, gentleman, Robert Bathe, of Laundeystown, Esquire, John Helde, of Helderstown, Esquire, and Michael Trevers, gentleman, or four of them. And whosoever will not come that is summoned, so often as they make default, to pay vi pence at every time, and the amercement to be estreated by the said surveyors, or any of them that is there present, to the Sheriff of the County of Dublin for the time being, and he to make levy thereof without delay, and to deliver the said amercements to the said surveyors, and they to expend them in the making of the said trenches and stopping the said waters, without rendering any account thereof to the King at his said Exchequer.

12. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, considering the good service which the Portrieves and Commons of the town of Ardee perform to our Lord the King in resisting Irish enemies in the county of Louth, it is ordained, by authority of the said Council, that the Portrieves of the said town be Justices of the Peace within the said town, and that they may summon and warn all manner of men dwelling in the said town to be sufficiently arrayed, and that they may perform their functions in the said town as often as they think necessary. And also that they may summon all manner of able-bodied men to answer at the marches in defence of the said county. And to amerce those who will not obey them in the premises, and to levy the amercements. And the amercements so levied to be expended in the purchase of bows and arrows and other defensive armour for the common benefit of the said town, and to account for the same to the Archbishop of Ardmagh, the Prior of the House of St. John of Ardee, and the sheriff of the county of Louth for the time being, and not to the King's Exchequer in Ireland. And also it is ordained and agreed, by authority of the said Council, that the said Portrieves and their successors be Clerks of the Market. And that no other be Clerk of the Market, nor shall have the correction of any weights or measures within the said town except the Portrieve for the time being: Provided always, that this Act and Ordinance extend not to the ¹ or prejudice of the Lords of Ardee, nor of their heirs in time to come.

13. Likewise, at the prayer of Michael, Archbishop of Dublin, that whereas the said Archbishop was elected messenger to pass into England on a certain message for the common benefit of this land in the time of Edward FitzEustace, Knight, being

Deputy to the Duke of York, Lieutenant of Ireland, praying for his labour, xl pounds by the hand of the Treasurer for the time being, of the first revenues which should accrue to the King after the said election, the which Michael, Archbishop, the said message with great diligence, labour, and costs, had atchieved, and in returning with the answer of the said message was taken and imprisoned by the Bretons and put to outrageous ransom, for which his pledges lie in custody in Scotland at great costs and losses. And the said Archbishop, of the xl pounds aforesaid can in no wise obtain assignment or payment unless that by our good governance and wisdom provision shall be made for him in this behalf. Whereupon, the premises being considered, it is ordained and agreed, by authority of the said Council, that the said Archbishop shall have xl pounds by the assignment of the Treasurer or his deputy.

14. Likewise, at the prayer of Edmund, Bishop of Meath, that whereas he was seized in his demesne as of fee, as in right of his bishoprick of Meath, of all the messuages, lands, tenements, rents, services, with the appurtenances, in Ardbrackan, Scurlogstown, and of a mill there, and of all the messuages, lands, and tenements, rents, and services in Balgeth, Ardcaith, Park, Porterstown, Corestown, Clony, Bertremeston, Irishtown, Baynerston, and Deannestown, with their appurtenances, and his said estate thereof continued until such time as he was thereof ousted by an Inquisition taken of great malice and not of truth before Reynold Co¹, Esquire, and Robert Cusack, of Cosynston, Esquire, Commissioners of our said Lord the King, and enemies of the said Edmund, in the xxxiii year of the reign of our Lord the King that now is, whereby it was found that one William Sylke, that heretofore was outlawed at the suit of one Robert Gallan, formerly of Dublin, merchant, in a plea of debt, and that the said Sylke the day that he was so outlawed, that is to say, the Tuesday next before the Feast of Easter, in the xvth year of the reign of our said Sovereign Lord the King, was seized in his demesne as of fee of all the messuages, lands, and tenements, rents, and services, with the appurtenances in Ardbrackan, which are of the yearly value of xx marcs. Also that the said William, the said day that he was outlawed, was seized in his demesne as of fee of all the messuages, lands, tenements, rents, and services, with the appurtenances, in Scurlogstown, and of a mill there which are of the yearly value of x pounds. And also the said William, the said day that he was so outlawed, was seized in his demesne as of fee of all the messuages, lands, and tenements, rents, and services, with the appurtenances in Balgeth, Ardcath, Parke, Porterstown, Correstown, Clony, Bertramestown, Irishton, Bayn-erestown, ¹ and Denanestown, with the appurtenances which are of the value xii marcs by the year. And for the said cause all the said lands, tenements, rents, and services, with the appurtenances, were taken and seized into the hand of our said Sovereign Lord the King by the said Commissioners. And also that the said William, the said day that he was outlawed, was seized in his demesne as of fee of all the messuages, lands, tenements, rents, and services, with the appurtenances, in Killyhan, the which are of the yearly value of x pounds. And also that the said William, the said day that he was outlawed, was seized in his demesne as of fee of the chief rent of Newton, near Trim, which is of the yearly value of c shillings. And by another Inquisition taken before the said Commissioners, the day place, and year aforesaid, whereby it was found that one Friar Edmond Oldhall, is and was a professed friar in the Order of the Friars Carmelites in the house of the Friars Carmelites of Norwich, under Friar Pierce St. Feyth, then Prior of the House aforesaid, whom obeying, Friar Edmond, so being friar professed in the Order aforesaid by the name of Edmond Oldhall, had purchased to himself the Bulls of our Holy Father the Pope, of the bishoprick of Meath. And then afterwards the said Friar Edmond, by virtue of the said bulls, was created bishop of Meath aforesaid, and now is Bishop of Meath by virtue of the said Bulls, and that no mention is made in the said Bulls that the said Friar Edmond then was a friar of the Order aforesaid in the said house of the Friars Carmelites, and so the said bishopric is and was void by the creation of the said Edmond into the said bishopric by reason that the said creation is null in law, because no mention was made in the bulls aforesaid that the said Edmond was friar of the Order aforesaid. And for the causes aforesaid, all the temporalities of the bishopric aforesaid are taken and seized into the hand of our Sovereign Lord the King by the said Reynold and Robert, Commissioners, as by the said Inquisition thereof, being of record in the Exchequer of our Sovereign Lord the King, more fully appears. Whereupon, the premises being considered, and how the said seizures are and appear Causa nulla in themselves, and how the said Bishop cannot sue by the course of the common law to have them adjudged Causa nulla unless he shall sue a Writ, which is called Melius inquirendo, to the Escheator of the Cross of Meath, where the said messuages, lands, and tenements are, to enquire how many messuages, lands, and tenements are in all the towns contained in the said Inquisitions, and considering how the said Robert, one of the Commissioners, is Escheator of the said Cross of Meath, and he is not of good fame nor good name, and also he is adversary to the said Bishop, by reason whereof he will not serve the Writs of Melius inquirendo, but rather delays the said Bishop, to his final destruction, and as the said Bishop is a Lord of Parliament, and has no other thing to maintain his state, except the said temporalities, which are now seized of malice without reasonable cause. And as the said Bishop had living of all the said messuages, lands, and tenements, rents, and services, with the appurtenances, as of the temporalities of his bishoprick of Meath, and did his fealty to our Sovereign Lord the King, in his Chancery of Ireland, as it appears of record. And also, forasmuch as the said Commissioners, by false and subtle imagination and artful colour, as making the jurors sworn of the said Inquisition to take cognizance of matter which falls in record, and also of matter false and slanderous, which is not determinable and cannot be in cognizance in this land, but only in England, inasmuch as the said Norwich is in England and no such place in this land, and taking the said Offices which are null and void in law, on the Good Friday last past, when all faithful Christian people should be at their divine service; it is ordained, established, and determined, by authority of the said Great Council, that all the said Inquisitions and seizures be void and null in law, nor of force and value, and that the hands of our Lord the King be therefrom removed. And the said Bishop restored thereto with all the issues and profits thereof from the day of the said Inquisitions and seizures made. And also that the said Statutes made before this time against the Escheators be put in use, and shall have place and force, and be as penal against Commissioners as against Escheators, for all manner of things done by any Chancery Commissioner since the making of the last Statute at Dublin, before Edward FitzEustace, Knight, then Deputy Lieutenant of Ireland, against Escheators, or hereafter by any manner of commission to be done. And also that the said Commissioners, for the causes aforesaid, be discharged utterly from this time forth of all manner of offices by them or any of them held under our Lord the King, except the occupation which the said Robert hath in the office of the Escheatorship for this year, and except the office which the said Reginald claims in the Sergeantry of the County of Dublin. And if any Office or Commission to be made or granted shall be made or granted to them or to any of them henceforth except as before excepted that it be void: Provided that the said penalty do not extend against the Justices of either Bench, the Barons of the Exchequer, the King's Serjeant or Attorney.

15. Likewise, at the prayer of James Prendergast otherwise Collyn, Clerk, that whereas our Lord the King that now is, by his Letters Patent under his Great Seal of Ireland, made at Dublin the xxiind day of November, the xxxiird year of the reign of our said Lord the King, under the attestation of Thomas Fitzmorice, the Earl of Kildare, the justice of our said Lord the King of his said land of Ireland, ordained the said James, Clerk and Keeper of the Hanaper of our said Lord the King of his Chancery of Ireland, to have, exercise, and occupy the said office, by himself or his sufficient deputy, or his sufficient deputies, for which or for whom he would answer, for the term of the life of the said James, he receiving from our Lord the King yearly in the said office such fees, wages, and rewards as John Passavant, formerly Clerk and Keeper of the said Hanaper in the said office, was accustomed to receive, as in the said Letters Patent more fully appeared. Whereupon, the premises considered, it is ordained and established, by authority of the said Great Council, that the estate, title, and possession which the said James hath in the said office be ratified, approved, and confirmed, to have and to hold to the said James according to the form and effect of the said Letters Patent, saving the King's prerogative.

16. Likewise, at the prayer of John Barnewall, of Kil gentleman, that whereas one Henry Brune, Knight, Treasurer of Ireland, took the said John and wrongfully imprisoned him in the house of John Duffe, of Drogheda, ix weeks and more, until such time as the said John Barnewall departed without licence of the said John Duffe, who having great indignation at his departure, instituted an action of debt against the said suppliant in the Exchequer of the King then being at Drogheda, the said John Barnewall durst not appear in proper person for fear of the said Henry Brune then being Treasurer of Ireland, the said John Barnewall thinking that the said John Duffe had no cause of action against him if it were not for his table during the said vi² weeks that he was in prison he made one Robert Eustace his attorney, and commanded that whatever the said John Duffe should demand in reason for his table during the said vi weeks he should acknowledge, supposing that the said John would not demand more than xx pence, or two shillings at most, by the week, and at the day of the said writ returnable, the said John Duffe declared against the said John Barnewall that he owed him c marcs for the said vi weeks table, and the said attorney made no defence but confessed his action of the said c marcs, by virtue of which confession the said John had judgment to recover the said c marcs and sued execution, to the perpetual injury and final destruction of the said John Barnewall, also to the damage of c marcs. Whereupon, the premises considered, it is ordained and agreed, by authority of the said Council, that the said recovery be void in law, and that no land nor goods nor chattels of the said John Barnewall should go in execution of the said recovery.

17. Likewise, at the prayer of Richard, son and heir to Patrick Sedgrave, that whereas this Patrick was formerly seized in his demesne as of fee of the manors of Baltrastyn and Killeglan, and held them of Richard, Duke of York, by knight's service, and of all the messuages, lands, and tenements, with the appurtenances, in Britonston, near Ballygarby, and held them of the King by a sparrow-hawk for all manner of service, and Gyaneston in the county of Meath, and held it of Thomas Nangle, Baron of Navan, in socage, and of a messuage and c acres of land, with the appurtenances, in Borraneston, in the county of Dublin, and held them by the year of Nicholas Barnewall for one penny half-yearly of service. And the said Patrick of the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements so seized, was, by English rebels, robbed and despoiled of all his goods and chattels, and himself killed and murdered and thrown into the sea. And after that he died so seized of all the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements, the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements descended to the said Richard, as son and heir to the said Patrick, by force of which he was thereof seized in his demesne as of fee, until one, Thomas Baath, formerly Escheator of our Sovereign Lord the King in Ireland, more of evil disposition than for any title of the King, by an Office taken before him at Duleek, seized into the hands of the King the said manors of Baltrastyn and Killeglan, and the said messuages, lands, and tenements in Gyaneston, and by another Office, taken before the said former Escheator at Balruddery, seized into the hands of the King, the said messuages and lands in Borraneston, as by the copy of the two Inquisitions hereafter following more fully appears. By reason of which seizure the said Richard, the son, was held out of his possession of all the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements to his great damage. And forasmuch as the said Patrick, at the time he was murdered and killed, was robbed and despoiled of all his chattels, so that the said Richard, the son, had not nor hath not goods nor chattels of the said Patrick, nor hath received any issues nor profits of the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements. By reason whereof, the said Richard, the son, is so poor that he cannot sue the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements out of the hands of the King at Common Law. Whereupon, the premises being considered, it is ordained and granted, by authority of the said Great Council, that the hands of the King be [removed] from all the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements, and the said Richard, the son, be restored to his possessions of all the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements, with their appurtenances, and to all the issues and profits thereof taken in the meantime. And that the said seizure and Inquisition be void in law and held for null. And that this removal of the hands of the King by authority of the said Council shall be as available in law and of as good security, and all other occupiers and tenants of the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements shall be discharged against our Sovereign Lord the King and his ministers from accounting or making satisfaction out of any issues and profits of the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements or any parcel thereof. And that the said Richard, the son, may have so many and such Writs out of the Chancery of our Lord the King in Ireland as to him shall seem necessary in this behalf to every court and office of the King in Ireland at all times that the said Richard, the son, shall desire them, any other seizure of the said manors, messuages, lands, and tenements had or made notwithstanding, saving the King's right and service therein if any there be.

An Inquisition of Office taken at Balruddery before Thomas Baathe, gentleman, escheator of our Lord the King, within his whole land of Ireland, on Monday next after the Feast of Saint James the Apostle in the 31st year of the reign of King Henry the 6th, by the underwritten viz., by Which jurors upon their oaths say, that one Patrick Sedgrave died seized in his demesne as of fee of one messuage and c acres of land, with their appurtenances, in Borranedon, in the county of Dublin, and held them of our Lord the King in chief by knight's service. And Richard Sedgrave is his son and heir, between the said Patrick and one Amice his wife, now surviving; and the said Patrick, on Monday next before the Feast of Saint George the Martyr last past, died, and the said Richard was of the age of xix years and no more on the day of the death of his father, and not married, and for that cause all the messuages and lands aforesaid, with the appurtenances, are taken and seized into the hands of the Lord the King. In [witness] whereof, &c.

Inquisition of Office taken at Duleek, before Thomas Baathe, gentleman, Escheator of our Lord the King within the whole land of Ireland, on Saturday next after the Feast of Saint Peter, which is called Ad Vincula, in the 31st reign of the reign of King Henry the 6th, by the underwritten, to wit, by Which jurors upon their oath say, that one Patrick Sedgrave died seized in his demesne as of fee of Baltrastyn, and of all the messuages, lands, and tenements, with the appurtenances, in Britonston, near Ballinagarbey and Gyaneston, in the county of Meath, and held them of our Lord the King in chief by knight's service, and died seized in his demesne as of fee of the manor of Killeglan, with its appurtenances, and the said manor, with its appurtenances, held of Walter Burro, as of the site of the Castle of Ratoath, which site Richard, Duke of York, held of the said Lord the King in chief by knight's service. And the said Duke gave and aliened the said site of the aforesaid Castle to the said Walter, now surviving, for term of his life, the license of our Lord the King thereon not being obtained. And the said Richard Sedgrave is the son and heir of the aforesaid Patrick, between the said Patrick and Amice his wife, now surviving. And the said Patrick, on Monday next before the Feast of Saint George the Martyr last past, died, and the said Richard was of the age of [xix] years and no more on the day of the death of his father and unmarried, And for these causes all the manors, messuages, lands, and tenements aforesaid, with the appurtenances, together with the site of the Castle aforesaid, are taken into the hand of our Lord the King. In [witness] of which, &c. Given at the day, place, and year above mentioned.

18. Likewise, at the request of the Commons of the county of Kildare, that whereas the said Commons dwelling in the said county for want of spies and watches upon the borders of the march of the said county at divers times are killed and taken, plundered and burned by the Irish enemies of the King, meaning and purposing to destroy the said county: It is ordained and agreed, by authority of the said Great Council, that Letters Patent of the King, under his Great Seal of this his land of Ireland, be made to Robert Eustace, of Ballycutlan, Christopher¹, of Osbernestown, Walron Eustace, of Donawed, and to John Ashe, of Moch Fornagh, in due form as they have been heretofore made and directed to other persons to make levy of Smoke Silver as it hath been formerly used and accustomed in the said county, without any fee to be paid to the said King for his Great Seal in the Chancery of Ireland. And that the said Letters Patent be made and directed to the said persons as often as they deem it necessary to have them for the safety of the said Commons, and the said Smoke Silver to be expended according to the direction of the said persons, or three of them, upon the said spies and watches, and the said persons to account to the Prior of Connel for the time being, and to Roland Eustace, of Castle Martyr, and not to the King's Exchequer in Ireland, how and in what manner they have expended the Smoke Silver upon the said spies and watches. And this to continue for a year.

19. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, that whereas the city of Dublin and the town of Drogheda from ancient time have been governed by merchants, being Mayors, who caused strangers and aliens to come to the said city and town, drawing to our Lord the King therefrom great issues and customs; now in these days Knights and Esquires make brokage of the mayoralty, to the great hindrance and hurt of the said city and town, and also to the revenues and customs of our Lord the King. Whereupon, the premises considered, it is ordained, agreed, by authority of the said Great Council, that no manner of Knight nor Esquire be Mayor of the said city and town but merchants only. And also the said Mayor for the year being shall not be Mayor for the three years after. And whosoever he be who shall infringe the said Act that he fall into the penalty of xx pounds to our Sovereign Lord the King, except those who have practised or do practise merchandize in their tender age, that is to say, before xxviii years, or hereafter shall practise merchandize in their tender age, that is to say, before xxviii years.

20. Likewise, at the request of Robert Dovedale and Anne his wife, that whereas the said Ann, at the time that she was sole and a widow, was seized in her demesne as of fee of the castle and manor of Rathcoffy, in which manor she had xx bullocks, lx cows, xvii sheep, and ¹ hogs, with divers other goods and chattels to the value of ccc marks; and the Saturday next after the Feast of All Saints in the xxxiiird year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord the King that now is, William B ², with sundry other English rebels and Irish enemies came to the said castle in manner of war and took it by assault, and took and imprisoned the said Anne, and the said heifers,² sheep, and hogs, goods, and chattels took, led, and carried away, to the final impoverishment of the said Anne; of which cows, sheep, hogs, goods, and chattels several are in the hands of the said takers and several in the hands of others. Whereupon, the premises considered, and how the said offence is openly known, it is ordained and agreed, by authority of the said Great Council, that whosoever hath or had any of those cows, sheep, hogs, goods, and chattels shall, as soon as he shall berequired, deliver the said goods to the said Robert and Anne, and if he do not, that they may have an action against them upon the said Ordinance to recover double damages. And that they may prosecute their suit in whatsoever court of the King or any other court that they will. And that they need not keep common days of the term, but special days : Provided always, that this Act extend not to Nicholas Wogan, Davy Wogan, nor Richard Wogan.

21. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, that whereas many and divers great extortions are committed and practised in the city of Dublin and the town of Drogheda, in that where plaints are affirmed in the said city and town the Recorder and Clerks of the said city and town will give no copy of the plaints so affirmed to any man unless he will pay for the same two shillings for the copy of every plaint, to the great extortion and oppression of all the King's liege people. Whereupon, the premises considered, it is ordained and established, by authority of the said Council, that the said Recorders or Clerks take for the copy of a plaint but two pence in anywise. And that any person who feels himself aggrieved in the premises may complain to the Mayors, Bailiffs, and Sheriffs of the city and town for the time being, and then they shall make and compel the said Recorders and Clerks to take only two pence aforesaid. And if the said mayors, bailiffs, and sheriffs apply no remedy in the matter aforesaid, that then the said Recorders and Clerks that take more than the said two pence shall stand as outlawed of trespass, and out of the King's protection, and never to occupy the said offices of Recorder or Clerks in the said city and town.

22. Likewise, at the request of the Commons, that whereas by a Statute made at Kilkenny it was ordained that if any of the lineage or adherents of the retinue of any chieftain of English lineage within this land, whom the said chieftain can chastise, commit any trespass or felony, that the said chieftain, after that he hath notice thereof, shall cause the said malefactor to be arrested and send him to the next gaol, there to remain until he be delivered by the law. And if the said chieftain will not do it, that his body shall be taken for the said malefactor, and be detained in prison till the body of the said malefactor be surrendered to the King's Court, there to be justified as is aforesaid. And, nevertheless, that the said chieftain be for a contempt ransomed at the King's will, and shall make satisfaction to the party aggrieved. And, because that every chieftain will say that he cannot chastize his lineage and his waged men, the said Statute is defrauded and not put in execution, wherefore it is ordained and agreed, by authority of the said Great Council, that every man shall answer for his sons and his hired men.

23. Likewise, at the prayer of John, Abbot of the House of the Blessed Virgin Mary of Navan, and the Convent of the same House, consideration being had how our Holy Father the Pope Nicholas the Fifth hath granted to all Christian people, confessed and contrite, going to the said House certain times of the year who give any property to the building and preservation of the said House, full remission of all their sins, to continue for x years, and at all times of the year other great indulgence to continue for ever; and also desiring the salvation and safety of all Christian people, and accepting the grant of the Pope, to the end that by the alms of all manner of pilgrims in going to the said House by reason of the very great indulgences and remission, the Divine Service there to the honour of Almighty God and our Lady may be better and honourably sustained: It is ordained and granted, by authority of the said Great Council, that Letters Patent be made to the said Abbot and Convent in due form in all points, according to the effect and contents of the writing hereafter following, and that without any fine to be made for it, and for a simple fee of xx shillings to be paid into the Hanaper of our Lord the King for his Great Seal:— Henry, by the grace of God, King of England and France, and Lord of Ireland, to all his bailiffs and liege subjects to whom the present letters shall come, greeting: Know ye that we, at the humble petition of our beloved in Christ John, Abbot of the House of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and of the Convent of the said House, having consideration that our Lord the Supreme Pontiff Pope Nicholas the Fifth hath granted to all the faithful of Christ going abroad to the said House at certain times of the year who bestow any property to the building and preservation of the said House, plenary remission of all their sins to continue for x years, and at all times of the year great indulgences to continue for ever. We, desiring the security and salvation of all Christian souls, and accepting the Papal grant, in order that by the alms of all strangers repairing to the said House by reason of the very great remission and indulgence, Divine Service there to the honour of Almighty God and the Blessed Virgin Mary may be better and more honourably sustained, of our special grace, by the assent of our beloved and faithful Thomas Fitzmorice, Earl of Kildare, Deputy Lieutenant of our land of Ireland, and of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and of the Commons of our land of Ireland, in our Great Council held at Dublin on Friday next before the Feast of Saint George the Martyr last passed, being and appearing, and by the authority of our Great Council aforesaid we receive into our safe and secure conduct, all and singular men, women, servants, strangers, boys, and girls, as well English rebels as not rebels, even indicted outlawed felons, fugitives, and transgressors whomsoever, as our Irish enemies and all other¹ of whatsoever parts, nations, conditions, or state they shall be,

and all the goods and chattels, lands, things, rents, and tenements of them and every of them travelling to the House aforesaid for the cause aforesaid, as well in time of peace as of war, during the journey of their pilgrimage in coming in, remaining there by night and day, in sojourning and conversing, and from thence returning to their homes, being unwilling that the aforesaid men, women, male and female servants, boys or girls, or any others of the said rebels, indicted outlawed felons, fugitives, and transgressors, nor any of them, by reason of debt, accompt, trespasses, covenants, detentions, or other contract whatsoever, at our suit or that of any other whomsoever, be arrested, disquieted, or in any other manner impleaded or disturbed. And therefore we command you, that all and every men, women, male and female servants, boys, and girls, as well English not rebels as rebels, though indicted persons, outlawed felons, fugitives, and transgressors, as our Irish enemies, and all other strangers of whatsoever parts, nations, conditions, or states they shall be, and every of them¹ and all their goods and chattels, lands, rents, things, and tenements of them and of every of them, and all the goods and chattels of them from their own parts to the said House aforesaid for the occasion of devotion, as well in time of peace as of war, how often soever going abroad, dwelling there by night and day, sojourning and conversing, and from thence returning to their homes as is aforesaid, you shall maintain, protect, and defend, not molesting them or grieving them in anything contrary to the tenor of these our Letters Patent. And if anything be lost or damaged in their persons or goods, ye shall cause it to be remedied for them without delay, and duly reformed: Provided always, that the aforesaid rebels, indicted persons, outlaws, felons, and transgressors, and our Irish enemies, and every of them, demean themselves well, honestly, and faithfully towards us and our faithful people, without doing or attempting anything which can tend to the damage of us and our people aforesaid, any Statute, Act, Ordinance, restriction, or proclamation to the contrary thereof enacted, made, or provided notwithstanding: And further, of our abundant grace¹ we have granted and given licence to the aforesaid Abbot and Convent, and his and their successors for ever, full power and authority, by themselves and their servants, all men who shall think fit to do anything contrary to the tenor of these our Letters Patent aforesaid, to the aforesaid rebels, outlaws, indicted persons, felons, or transgressors, or strangers whomsoever¹ in disturbance or vexation of the aforesaid pilgrims, as well coming to the said House as returning to their homes¹ they may arrest and detain by their bodies until they shall have fully satisfied the said pilgrims according to the discretion of the said Abbot and Convent for the time being for their damages in that behalf done. Also, the said pilgrims, for their defaults, if any they shall commit in going abroad to the said House, or in returning from thence to their homes, they may correct, punish, and remedy the said defaults without any hindrance or impediment of us or our heirs, or the minister of us or our heirs, or the officers or ministers of us or of our heirs whomsoever in future times. But we strictly give in charge to all and singular our officers and ministers, and our other faithful subjects of our land aforesaid whom it concerns, by the tenor of these presents, that they be aiding and attentive as is meet to the aforesaid Abbot and Convent, and their servants, and every of them, in the execution of the premises. In witness whereof, we have caused these our Letters Patent to be made. Witness, the Deputy aforesaid, at Dublin, the xxxiird day of April, in the 33rd year of our reign.

CLERK OF THE KING'S COUNCIL.

Statute, 12 Ed. 4. cap. 28.

Likewise at the prayer of Robert Bold, Knight, Lord of Ratoath, that whereas it pleased the Right Honourable Lord, the Earl of Kildare, Deputy Lieutenant of Ireland, the Chancellor and Treasurer, and the King's Council in Ireland, to send the said Robert with certain writings and instructions to the King's Good Grace, and to the Duke of Clarence and others of the King's Council in England concerning the prosperity and state of this land. Whereupon it pleased the King's Good Grace to send his gracious answer, under his seal and sign manual, to the said Deputy Chancellor and Treasurer, and to the rest of the King's Council in Ireland, as well for the conservation of the said land as for the Liberty of Meath, and for Sir John Pylkington another writing which the said Robert bore from the King our Sovereign Lord One John Carnewalshe, Knight, accused the said Robert before the said Deputy, the Chancellor and Treasurer, and all the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and the King's Council in Ireland, in open Parliament rehearsing and fully asserting that all the said writing borne by the said Robert was false and forged, insomuch that he brought the Mayor of Dublin and a great multitude and came to the place and lodging of the said Deputy with improper language, and there would have murdered and slain the said Robert had it not been for the said Deputy, and the Chancellor and Treasurer, and the rest of the King's Council, for bearing of the said writing. Whereupon at the humble prayer of the said Robert, the Deputy, and Chancellor, by advice of the said Council of the King, here, sent back all the said writing to the King, and to the Duke of Clarence, and Council in England, by Robert Nangle, Clerk of the King's Council in Ireland, and being examined before the Deputy and Council here, he hath certified that all the said writing which the said Robert bore from the King's grace, as well for the Liberty of Meath as for the said John Pilkington, Knight, and all others which are of record in the King's Chancery of Ireland upon the file, are true and just, and the King's seal and sign manual, and not false or forged, and a Concordatum made thereon. And further ordained that the said Clerk of the Council be openly examined in this High Court of Parliament, and if he be found true in the premises that by authority of the said Parliament the said Robert be cleared in his name and good fame, and the said John shall be found false in the said accusation.

Having furnished a pipe of wine, value £3, to the Lord Justice for the time being, then on an expedition against the Irish enemy, and not having been paid the same, though he had got an order of Council to that effect; prays that he may be paid, or some recompence given him. He is ordered three marks as an allowance.

[93.]—Pour Johanne Duff Walsh de Karuckaman.—A.D. 1393. Prays for a general pardon, which is granted him.

[94.]—Pour Roger Fraunceys.—A.D. 1393. Prays to be discharged from the office of Sheriff of Waterford, on the ground of non-residence, poverty, and want of power to discharge the office. His request is granted, and another Sheriff ordered to be elected.

[95.]—Pour Johanne Sheriggeley.—A.D. 1393. Complains of delay in the execution of a writ of dower in favour of his wife, who had previously been married to Sir Simon Cusack. The Lord Justice and Council order the Justices of the Kings' Bench to proceed to judgment thereon.

[96.]—Pour Morice Morgane. Vacat quia inferius. [102.]—A.D. 1393. Asks for the Chancellorship of Cloyne, which is granted him.

[97.]—A.D. 1393. Fiat for a protection for Thomas, bishop of Waterford and Lismore, and his tenants, who are employed in the King's service; to last for a year.

[98.]—Pour Johan fitz Lauerance Talbot.—A.D. 1393. Accuses the Archbishop of Armagh of collusion in causing the lands of Ballygandyr to be seized into the King's hands, out of which a life annuity had been secured to the petitioner by the said Archbishop with the full consent of his Chapter. Both parties ordered to have their remedy by law.

[99.]—Pour David Wogan, Chevalier.—A.D. 1393. Prays for remission of rent and arrears of a life interest in Newhall, Ledytoun, and Gleglanestoun; the lands, out of which it was paid, having been seized into the King's hands by virtue of the ordinance made at Guildford against absentees. The rent as well as the land out of which it issued, ordered to be seized into the King's hands, and the petitioner together with those that sold him the said rent ordered to be fined for contempt.

[100.]—Pour Thomas Botiller.—A.D. 1393. Thomas le Botiller, and Nicholas White, King's Sergeant, pray to be appointed Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer in the counties of Cork and Limerick, and the Cross of Tipperary; in as much as the lieges there, not being able to sue elsewhere, may be deprived of their rights for want of law. A commission is ordered accordingly during pleasure.

[101.]—Pour Johan Pellyn.—A.D. 1393. Fiant for patent of a presentation to the Archdeaconry of Cloyne.

[102.]—Pour Maurice Morgan.—A.D. 1393. Fiant for patent of a presentation to the Chancellorship of Cloyne.

[103.]—Pour Dyonis Okeywan.—A.D. 1393. Being Irish of blood, and by a recent statute debarred from holding a benefice, without licence, he prays for a confirmation of his possession of the Vicarage of Adryke. A patent of confirmation ordered him for a fine of 20s.

[104.]—Pour Johan de Aynesharth.—A.D. 1393. In conjunction with Denis Roche, prays for a grant for one year of the small customs of Wexford, in consideration of their services to the King against Mac Morogh. Their petition granted for a fine of 10 marks.

[105.]—Pour Levesque de Waterford.—A.D. 1393. Prays for license to treat and parley with Irish enemies and English rebels in order to reform them, and to give them safe conduct and meat and drink whilst they remain with him, any ordinance or statute to the contrary notwithstanding. His prayer is granted, provided such treaty or conference shall not be to the prejudice of the King.

[106.]—Pour Johan Sergeant.—A.D. 1393. Abbot of the convent of Saint Thomas, Dublin, he prays for a pardon, which is granted him.

[107.]—Pour Thomas Snelle.—A.D. 1393. Being Archdeacon of Glendalough and Prebendary of Wicklow, both which places are situated amongst the Irish enemies, he prays for license to visit the said benefices, and to parley and treat with the Irish enemies and English rebels as often as he wishes, as otherwise he should derive no profit from the benefices: his petition is granted, provided the King be not prejudiced.

[108.]—Pour William White.—A.D. 1393. Petitions for a license to the Archbishop and Dean and Chapter of Cashel to unite the rectory of Knockgraffan and prebend of Glanhyne, and to transfer the patronage of the rectory of Knockgraffon from Walter de Bermingham, Lord of Knockgraffon, to the Dean and Chapter of Cashel. The petition is granted.

[109.]—Pour Johan de Dessemond.—A.D. 1393. Inasmuch as the country round the cities of Cork and Limerick and the town of Youghal is laid waste by the Irish enemies and English rebels, and that the said cities and town cannot be supplied with provisions unless the carriers of same are protected going and returning; he prays for a patent empowering him to convoy the said carriers, receiving the accustomed fees therefor. His petition is granted.

[110.]—Pour Nichol Aunger.—A.D. 1393. Being debtor to the King, he prays for license to carry beyond the sea four weys of wheat, in order that he may the sooner pay his debt: license granted accordingly.

[111.]—Pro Esmond Savage.—A.D. 1393. Prays for a renewal of his patent as Seneschal of Ulster, and for a safe conduct for himself and his men going and returning, and from the Lord Justice and Council, also for a renewal of the patent of the Constablership of Carrickfergus to Robert Lang. The renewal of the letters patent for the seneschalship and the safe conduct are granted.

[112.]—Pro Thoma Waltoun.—A.D. 1393. Inasmuch as Thomas Talbot, by an inquisition unlawfully constituted, had seized a messuage of his into the King's hands, and of ill will had ruined the buildings on the same, he prays for a remedy. The commission, under which the inquisition was held, is revoked, and the party referred to the law for remedy.

[113.]—Pour le Conte de Deassemond.—A.D. 1393. Having been granted £40 as a reward in the time of the Marquis of Dublin, in satisfaction whereof he had received out of the Exchequer a tally of £20 of the farm of the city of Cork; and having presented the said tally to the Mayor and Bailiffs of Cork, and not being able to obtain payment from them, asks for a writ to compel them to pay him, or for some other mode of payment to be ordered him. In consideration of his expenses sustained in the King's wars, a writ is ordered him accordingly.

[114.]—Pour la ville de Tristeldermot.—A.D. 1393. The Commons of the town of Castledermot having compounded with McMorogh for 84 marks, which they had assessed amongst themselves, pray for a commission directed to certain of their body to empower them to levy that sum, in consideration of the succour and refuge they had afforded to many, and inasmuch as McMorogh had the person of one of them in pledge for the payment of the composition. Inquiry is ordered, and if the statements made in the petition are found to be true, a commission to issue accordingly.

[115.]—Pour Larcevesque de Dyvellyn.—A.D. 1393. Robert Archbishop of Dublin being minded, by advice and counsel of the lords and others of the land, to go to the King and lay before him a statement of the evils of the country, and the Earl of Kildare having, contrary to the liberties and franchises of Holy Church, quartered 100 kern on his seigniory of Ballymore, and on his tenants there, and caused unheard of devastation; prays for a remedy. A writ ordered to be sent to the Earl directing him to remove his kern and make amends for the wrongs inflicted, or if not, inquiry to be made in the King's Bench.

[116.]—Pro Johanne Episcopo Leghlynense.—A.D. 1393. Complains that, having been granted the township of Galrothestoun, part of the temporalities of the bishopric of Killaloe, whilst it remained in the King's hands, yet it had been permitted that the said Bishop of Killaloe should perform his fealty and receive livery of his temporalities in Ireland instead of in England, and so he had been ousted of his grant: prays that the Bishop of Killaloe should be compelled to perform his fealty lawfully, and until then that he (the Bishop of Leighlin) should be again put in possession. Ordered that all be summoned by writs of scire facias for a certain day, and that right be done between the King and the parties.

[117.]—Vacat quia superius. [No. 95.]

[151.]—A.D. 1393. Walter Penkestoun prays for a writ adjourning an assize of freshforce brought against him before the Mayor and Bailiffs of Drogheda, because his occupations as Clerk of the King's Bench prevents his appearance to defend it. His petition is granted.

[152.]—Pur John Darcy.—A.D. 1393. See No. 150.

[153.]—Pur Wauter Evere.—A.D. 1393. Prays for the custody of certain lands in Raiestoun and Rathcrossan, which were Francis Wyot's. His petition is granted.

[154.]—Pour Esmond Berle.—A.D. 1393. Gerald O'Byrne, chieftain of his nation, being largely indebted to him, he prays for license to purchase a certain barge from the said Gerald, as the only means of recovering his debt. His petition is granted.

[155.]—Pur Barnabe Cusake.—A.D. 1393. Barnaby and Thomas Cusake pray the Lord Justice to issue writs prolonging an assize of novel disseisin of certain lands in Meath, brought against them by Isould Taaf, formerly wife of John Cusake, and ordering the tenor of certain records to be transmitted from the Treasury of Trim and from Carlow for the behoof of the petitioners. Their petition is granted.

[156.]—A.D. 1393. Fiant for patent to Stephen Lane, merchant, of Brestwyk, to export ten weyes of wheat.

[157.]—Pour Frere Nichol Whyte.—A.D. 1393. Prays for an allowance by reason of his labours in travelling by bad and dangerous ways to the marches on the King's affairs.

[158.]—Pour Philippe Kyntoun.—A.D. 1393. Fiat for a protection.

[159.]—Pur Thomas Sergeant.—A.D. 1393. Prays for a special charter of pardon of various offences, which is granted him for a fine of 20s.

[160.]—Pur Henry Archer.—A.D. 1393. Having been chosen Provost of Kilkenny in his absence, and being also prevented by the dangerous condition of the roads between Kilkenny and Carlow, from obeying the King's writ summoning him to appear at the Exchequer at Carlow, in consequence whereof he was fined 40s., he prays for some allowance in consideration of his labours in the King's service by sea and land. He is granted 40s.

[161.]—Salvum conductum pro Ona, muliere Oneelle.—A.D. 1393. A safe conduct for Ona, wife of Nellan Oge O'Neill, with twelve men and women in her company, on her way to, and returning from, Drogheda, to treat with the Lord Justice and Council.

[162.]—A.D. 1393. George Telyng, whose son had been given as a hostage for the payment of eighty-five marks promised to O'Reilly on condition of his not laying waste the country about Kells in Westmeath, prays the Lord Justice and Council to relieve him from the payment of £5 which he had borrowed by way of imprest from the Treasurer of Ireland to redeem his son. A subsidy having been granted by a great Council held at Castledermot, and which was not yet all collected, the Bishop of Meath, then

Justice of Ireland, having assigned to the said George, one half of the £20 to be levied off the Clergy of Meath, which had been placed at the disposal of the said Bishop; he is commissioned to collect the arrears and hand it over to the Treasurer of Ireland in discharge of the £25 advanced to the said Geo. Telying.

[163.]—Pur James Verdoun.—A.D. 1393. Thomas de Verdoun having alienated in trust the manor of Clonmore, in the County of Louth, with reversion in tail male to the father of the petitioner, and his said father having entered on his reversion; James de Verdon, his son, having proved his age, prays for livery, and pardon of the alienation.

[178.]—A.D. 1393. Thomas Clare, soldier, whose horse, worth 10 marks, the only property he had in the world, was killed; prays to be paid the value thereof. He is granted 5 marks.

[179.]—A.D. 1393. William de Veer of Howth, and Agnes Dany, his wife, pray for a general pardon, which is granted them, without fine, at the request of the Bishop of Meath.

[180.]—A.D. 1393. Thomas le Botiller, son of James, late Earl of Ormond, prays for the wardship of Elizabeth Netterville, daughter and heir to Richard Netterville, and cousin and heir to Philip Naptoun, without paying anything to the King therefor, as part of a recompense of the great labours and costs incurred by him in the King's service. His petition is granted.

[181.]—A.D. 1393. Simon Glaunforbrigge, Rector of Youghal, prays for a writ to arrest Sir Robert Lythum and William Botiller, of Connaught, who had wrongfully and by force of arms entered his church of Youghal, and, he being then at the high altar, and the host in his hands, had beaten and ejected him from his church, tearing his vestments and carrying away his goods. A writ is according issued to the Sheriff of Cork and Provost and Sovereign of Youghal, to arrest the offenders and cause them to appear before the Lord Justice and Council on pain of 200*l*.

[182.]—A.D. 1393. Edward Chesuldenne, clerk, prays for the farm of the lands of Rath, near Drommyskyn, as long as they remain in the King's hands. His request is granted, the rent to be according to the valuation last made.

[183.]—A.D. 1393. Thomas le Botiler, son to James, late Earl of Ormond, petitions for a grant of all the lands in the cantred of Offagh, in the county of Tipperary, along the west side of the Suir, with the exception of the baronies of Cahir and Dromloman, on the ground that by neglect of the owners they had been overrun and laid waste by the Irish enemies and English rebels, to have and to hold in conformity with an Act lately passed in Ireland for the better inhabiting the lands of the said county; to hold them till all his expenses in gaining possession of, enclosing and guarding the same, are repaid him. His petition is granted.

[184.]—A.D. 1393. Fiant for patent, to Thomas de Everdoun, clerk, of the prebend of Effynn in the cathedral of Limerick.

[185.]—A.D. 1393. Fiant for patent to Robert de la Freigne, Knight, of the office of Secondary Baron of the Exchequer.

[186.]—A.D. 1393. John Dervos prays for a general pardon, pleading that he held a pardon under the seal of the Earl of March, Lord of the liberty of Meath, and had committed no offences since then. His prayer is granted for a fine of 20s.

[198.]—A.D. 1393. John Midiltoun, Guardian of the Chapel of our Lady on Bennetsbridge, prays for license to perfect a tower on the said bridge adjoining the said Chapel, and to fortify the bridge as strongly as he can, leaving a sufficient roadway for the King's lieges, giving as a reason that the Irish enemies and English rebels were wont to pass and return by the said bridge, to the great injury of the district, and that the tower and fortress aforesaid would prevent their passage. His petition is granted, with license to him and his successors, Guardians of the said chapel, to hold the said tower and fortress.

[199.]—A.D. 1393. Robert de Hereford, Knight, prays for a re-grant of the lands and possessions of Robert de Berford and Henry his brother, in consequence of an informality in a former grant of the same. His petition is granted.

[200.]—A.D. 1393. Fiant for patent granting to William de Carlelle the lands, &c. of John Carlelle, defunct.

[201.]—A.D. 1393. Patent under the privy seal granting to William de Carlelle, during pleasure, the lands, &c. which belonged to John de Carlelle, defunct, which had been seized into the King's hands for certain reasons.

[202.]—A.D. 1393. Nicholas Prene prays to be appointed Serjeant of the cross at Meath, at the same toll paid by the late Serjeant, Nicholas Mody. His petition is granted.

[203.]—A.D. 1393. Edward Chesuldenne prays for custody of the lands of Flemmyngtoun, and also of a carucate of land in the township of Curragh, being in the King's hands because the Abbot of St. Peter and Paul of Armagh was Irish. His petition is granted.

[204.]—A.D. 1393. The Archbishop of Armagh prays for license to appropriate in mortmain the church of St. Columba of Clonmore, in the county of Louth, to the Archdeaconry of Armagh. His petition is granted.

[206.]—A.D. 1393. Adam Taillour, Vicar of Callan, having been robbed of a horse and armour by his servant, and having made fine of one mark for the said goods and chattels, valued at 4½ marks, and the said goods and chattels having been subsequently valued by inquest at 8 marks, for which he is sued, prays that as the goods and chattels had been his own property, he may be allowed to have them at the fine which he had originally paid. His petition is granted on condition that he pay a fine of one mark additional.

[207.]—A.D. 1393. Fiat for a commission giving the custody of the lands belonging to John, son and heir to Sir William de Londris, Knight, in the county of Meath, to Robert Evre and Thomas de Evertoun, so long as they remain in the King's hands.

[208.]—A.D. 1393. Thomas Tuyt prays for livery of certain portions of the manor of Portlester, to which he is heir, and which are in the King's hands, being held of the King's ward, the Earl of March by Knights' service, as of his Castle of Trim. The petition is sent into the Chancery, and all parties left to the remedy of the law.

[209.]—A.D. 1393. Robert and Thomas Henbryge, having lost horses, armour, &c., and suffered much damage in the King's service, pray for a grant, for twenty years without rent, of the lands which belonged to Thomas Arondele of Drogheda, and which are now in the King's hands. Their petition is granted.

[210.]—A.D. 1393. Fiat for a protection for John Lyndraper, alias Kerre, who is about to pass into England in the King's service.

[211.]—Vacat quia revocatum.—A.D. 1393. Thomas Snelle, clerk, prays for a general pardon, which is granted him for a fine of 20s.

[212.]—A.D. 1393. Fiant for patent to Thomas de Burgo to be Sheriff of Connaght, and for a writ de non intromittendo to Walter Bremyngham, late Sheriff of the same.

APPENDIX.

[1.]—A.D. 1393. Letter to the Council of Ireland, from the King, informing them that he had relieved the Duke of Gloucester of the Lieutenancy of Ireland, and had appointed the Earl of Marche his successor, in whose absence he had made the Earl of Ormond Lord Justice of Ireland; also stating that he had constituted the Archbishop of Dublin Chancellor, and sent over money and troops and taken other steps for the Government of Ireland.—p. 255.

[2.]—A.D. 1393. Letter from King Richard II. to the Earl of Ormond, informing him that he had been appointed Lord Justice of Ireland, and that a force of men-at-arms and archers, and also 2,000 marks, had been sent to aid in the government of Ireland.—p. 258.

[3.]—A.D. 1399. Credentials for the message sent to England by the Guardian of the Land of Ireland and by the Council there. At a parley, after Richard the Second's departure from Ireland, Mac Murrough demanded restitution of the barony of Norragh in right of wife, also the arrears of his annuity, otherwise he declared he would not keep the peace beyond Michaelmas. He is at open war, and has gone to aid the Earl of Desmond against the Earl of Ormond. O'Neill has assembled great forces to destroy the whole country if his son and other hostages confined in the castle of Dublin are not delivered up to him. There are no soldiers in pay for the defence of the land, and no money in hand to pay them. The Irish enemies are strong and arrogant; the English weak and dispirited. The English families that have gone into rebellion oppress and spoil the poor lieges, are not amenable to the law, and, though they wish to be called gentlemen of blood, yet are nothing but sturdy robbers. They are accomplices of the Irish enemies, and so between them both the loyal English are destroyed. Hence the revenue is reduced to nothing. The King's revenue in the obedient counties is greatly diminished on account of the existence of many Liberties, or Counties Palatine, and the reckless grants to individuals. The Barons of the Exchequer are unlearned in the law, and the other offices of the Exchequer are filled by illiterate men, who, thinking only of grasping the fees, have bought their patents, and appoint deputies who are unlearned and careless of their duties. The Escheatorship, which used to return a profit, is now filled by a salaried officer, and no revenue accrues to the King. The Customs, which used to return a profit, are granted away, and the Customer is paid a salary, little coming to the King.—p. 261.

[4.]—A.D. 1404. Inspeximus of an enrolment of a grant to the Earl of Ormond by the Council, with the assent of the Magnates, Clergy, and Commons, as their Stipendiary and Governor at War in the absence of Stephen Lescrope, Deputy to Thomas of Lancaster, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, in consequence of the danger imminent from the enemies and rebels of the land, of a subsidy of 6s. 8d. on each carucate of tilled land in Leinster, and the counties of Meath, Louth, Waterford, and Tipperary; and a rateable proportion from the prelates and clergy, and the cities of Dublin and Waterford, the town of Drogheda, and other towns of those parts, to defray his expenses; on condition that Coigne and Livery be not exacted by him during the time of his government, and that it be not drawn into a precedent.—p. 269.

[5.]—A.D. 1442. Articles against the Earl of Ormond. A powerful English nobleman required for the government of Ireland. If the Earl of Ormond was thought suitable by the Parliament, they would have named him to the King. An English nobleman better suited for the office than one of Irish birth. The Earl of Ormond is aged, unwieldy, and feeble, and having lost his own castles and lordships from lack of power to defend them, is not likely to keep, conquer, or get any for the King. He made Irishmen, and the grooms and pages of his household, knights of the shire, to support him in Parliament. He converted fines levied on those absent from Parliament to his own use. He is guilty of sundry illegal acts of oppression. His appointment as Deputy to Lord Welles was deprecated by the Gentlemen and Commons, fearing a breach of the peace by his means, and finally he was put under bond to keep the peace. He is therefore not fit to be Lieutenant. He was impeached of treason by the Earl of Marche, Lord Grey, and Lord Talbot, and has not been absolved therefrom. Sundry witnesses to be called to testify against him things which the messenger may not, as a clergyman, divulge. He ought, therefore, to be superseded, and a commission appointed to inquire into the accusations made against him.—p. 273.

[6.]—A.D. 1442. Inspeximus of a memorandum of evidence taken before the Lord Lieutenant and Council concerning certain charges against the Earl of Ormond, transmitted by virtue of a privy seal from England to Richard Wogan, Chancellor of Ireland. 1st. As to his unfitness to be Lord Lieutenant. 2nd. As to his appointing Irishmen and the grooms and pages of his household to be Knights of the Shire. 3rd. As to the danger to the peace of the country from his appointment. The answer of the Council to these charges, acquitting the Earl.—p. 276.

[7.]—A.D. 1442. Letter of Richard Wogan, Chancellor of Ireland, to Henry VI., throwing doubts on the evidence laid before the Council in refutation of certain charges against the Earl of Ormond.—p. 285.

[8.]—A.D. 1442. Inspeximus of a memorandum of proceedings of the Lord Lieutenant and Council of Ireland, consequent on the withdrawal from Ireland of Richard Wogan, Chancellor of Ireland, and his concealment of the Great Seal.—p. 288.

[9.]—A.D. 1442. Memorandum of proceedings before the Lord Lieutenant and Council of Ireland respecting the refusal to deliver the Great Seal to Richard Talbot, Archbishop of Dublin, Chancellor of Ireland, consequent on his neglecting to produce before them the letters patent of his office, or any record or exemplification thereof. Memorandum of the superseding of Richard Talbot, Archbishop of Dublin, as Chancellor by the Lord Lieutenant and Council of Ireland.—p. 295.

[10.]—A.D. 1444. Memorandum of proceedings relative to charges against the Earl of Ormonde as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The Earl of Ormond summoned to England by the King, of which he is glad, as he had by a previous letter, under the King's signet, been ordered to remain in Ireland. The Earl of Ormond summons a Great Council at Drogheda, to report to the King on the state of Ireland and his conduct as Lieutenant thereof. Inspeximus of a Memorandum of the proceedings of the Great Council held at Drogheda. Inspeximus of a Memorandum of proceedings of the King's Council held at Drogheda.—p. 303.

[11.]—A.D. 1345. Representation of the Lord Justice and Council of Ireland to the King. The Justice and Council of Ireland offer suggestions to the King for the improvement of his revenue in Ireland. Debts of large amount due to the King are not levied. The reliefs due to the King were never levied. The customs of Ireland have not been duly collected. The Chief Customer has his office for life, and is non-resident, and his fee of 80*l.* amounts to nearly the rest of the Customs. The Escheators seldom account, and retain the escheats in their own hands. The Council have commenced to extend these lands again, and find their value to be much greater than that returned by the Escheators. If these two offices were properly executed the King's revenue would be greatly increased. The granting of Liberties like those of Durham and Chester oust the King of much of his revenue and authority. Lands, &c. seized into the King's hands should not be given away again without consulting the Irish Council. The Irish Court of Exchequer has distrained those who owe homage, to the King's profit. The Lord Justice has taken in hand the business relative to the bail of the Earl of Desmond, as he was charged by the Council of England. The King should be well advised by his Council before he remits to the Prior of Lanthony the 1,360 marks recovered against him in the Irish Exchequer. The Chancery has but one Clerk and one Petty Clerk, and they are not capable of transacting the business of that Court. A properly qualified Clerk of the Rolls should be speedily sent over. The Exchequer is in like case. Some, who have been punished for their evil ways in Ireland, by lies and flattery procure in England Briefs and Letters, thereby defeating the proceedings taken against them and discrediting the King's ministers in Ireland. The King to make known his will relative to officers who hold their posts for life.—p. 314.

Firstly, McMurghes began the war before the coming of the King, and [continued it] after his departure, until a conference for a treaty was made between the Guardian and the Council of the land and the said McMurghes, whereat the said McMurghes demanded restitution of the barony of Norraghe, and payment of his annuity of four-score marks per annum, with the arrears, otherwise he would not keep the peace; and the Council, considering the trouble and the danger of greater war after Richard's departure, and, to his having after a truce carried out his threat of renewing hostilities when Michaelmas was past and to the treasure carried back to England by Richard's faithful clerk, Maudeleyne, the date of the above document may be placed at the close of the year 1399, soon after Richard's deposition, and whilst Alexander de Balcot was Governor or Guardian of Ireland for two months after the accession of Henry IV. Item, touz les profitz de la terre, si bien manoirs come terres, rentz et autres choses, que sont cleres ou dascune value, sont demandes et dones as autres, issint que nul profit vient al Eschequer pur paier les fees ne les charges nautres choses, la ou le revenues en temps passee soloient paier grant partie de les costages de la guerre.

Item, non obstant que les revenues sont ensi¹ abatuz, plusieurs fees et anuitees sont donez si bien as Irrois, que amontont a tresgrant somme, come² as Engleis, en tresgrant charge importable del Eschequer; et issint les revenues et profitz sont tout abatuz, et les charges encressez, quels ne sont my possibles destre paiez, etc.

Item, qant a les ministers de Leschequer, fait assavoir [In dorso.] que nul Baroun est illoques apris de la ley, come The Barons of the Exchequer are grant boisoigne serroit.

is given for twenty years to the Mayor and Bailiffs of Waterford to enclose the town, and little is done.

Item, all the profits of the land, as well manors as lands, rents and other things, which are clear or of any value, are asked for and given to others, so that no profit comes to the Exchequer to pay the fees and charges and other things, whereas the revenues in times past used to pay a great part of the expenses of the war.

Item, notwithstanding that the revenues are thus reduced, many fees and annuities are given as well to Irish as to English, which amount to a very great sum, to the very great [and] insupportable charge of the Exchequer; and thus the revenues and profits are all reduced and the charges increased, which cannot possibly be paid, &c.

Item, as regards the officers of the Exchequer, be it known that no Baron there is learned in the law, as great need should be.

unlearned in the law, and the other offices of the Exchequer are filled by illiterate men, who thinking only of grasping the fees, have bought their patents, and appoint deputies who are unlearned and careless of their duties.

The Escheatorship, which used to return a profit, is now filled by a salaried officer, and no revenue accrues to the King.

Item, les autres offices de Leschequer sont malement occupiez per ceux qi ne sont my apris ne lettrez, ne nount nul conissance de leur offices, mes ont purchacez patentes de les dites offices pur covetise de les fees, et aussi ont en leur absence qi nount cure sils eient leur profitz et gaine. Cest assavoir les offices de Remembrancer, et loffice Chief Grosser, et loffice de Seconde Grosser, et autres, dount les greindre partie deux ne conussent my un lettre, boisoigne seroit qils fuissent gentz tresbien apris de leur office; et ensi il est grant mischief en celle partie.

Item, qant a loffice de Leschetour, les Eschetours soloient donir per an c marcs pur avoir et servir le dit office, et outre ce rest a Roy de les profitz et issues dicelle; et Leschetour ore prent per an del doun le Roy xliij^{li} pur servir le dit office, et¹ profit en effect rende a Roy.

[TRANSLATION.]

Item, the other offices of the Exchequer are ill filled by those who are neither learned nor lettered, nor have any knowledge of their duties, but have purchased patents of their said offices from covetousness of the fees, and also have in their absence [deputies] who have no care if only they have their profits and gain. That is to say, the offices of Remembrancer and Chief Engrosser and the office of Second Engrosser, and others, of whom the greater part do not know a letter, [whereas] it is requisite that they should be persons very well skilled in their duty; and thus there is great mischief in this behalf.

Item, as regards the office of Escheator, the Escheators used to give a hundred marks yearly to have and serve the said office, and besides this there was a remainder to the King of the profits and issues thereof; and now the Escheator takes yearly of the King's gift forty-two pounds to serve the said office, and in effect [no] profit rendered to the King.

Item, les custumes et cokectes Dirland soloient estre grante partie del substance de les revenues illoeqes, et ore poy vient a Roy porce que ascuns de eux sont deuez as autres, et le Customer ad loffice de Collectour a terme de sa vie, et print per an li, et poy vient a Roy.

The Customs, which used to return a profit, are granted away, and the Customer is paid a salary, little coming to the King.

[TRANSLATION.]

Item, the customs and cokets of Ireland used to be a great part of the substance of the revenues there, and now little comes to the King because sundry of them are due to others, and the Customer has the office of Collector for term of his life, and takes yearly fifty pounds, and little comes to the King.

COTTON. MS. TITUS B. XI., Fol. 12.

ARTICLES AGAINST THE EARL OF ORMOND.

. of the Messageres of the londe of you, A.D. 1442.
 Souerain Lorde of Irelande: as in substance for asmoche as longeth hym the welfare of your said londe that the Erle of Ormond be Lieutenaunt of the same londe.

. . . . by all the lordes spirituall and temporell of A powerful English nobleman required for the government of Ireland.
 your said londe and the communes of the same, in your Parlement holden at Develyn, the Friday next after the fest of seint Martyne in wynter last passed, were fullych avised and assented that I and my felowe mes-sageres for the said londe shulde desire of you, soverain Lorde, to ordeyne a myghti lorde of this your Realme of Englonde for to be your Lieutenaunt of your said londe, that tyme beyng there present the Erle of Ormond, as Depute to the lorde Welles, than your Lieutenaunt there. Please it your highnesse to be enformed, howe If the Earl of Ormond was thought suitable by the Parliament, they would have named him to the King.
 that if had be seynegoode and profitable for you and for your said londe, for to have had the said Erle your Lieu-tenaunt, he shulde have been named atte said Parlement.
 Doyng you to vnderstonde that they alle, bothe lordes spirituall and temporell and communes there assembled, considered in their wisdome that it was moste expedient to you, soverain Lorde, to have to your Lieutenaunt An English nobleman better suited for the office than one of Irish birth.
 there a lorde of the birthe of this your noble Realme, whom your people there woll more favour and obey than to any man of that londes birth. For men of this Realme kepe better justice, execute your lawes and favour more your commune people there, and ever have done before this tyme, better then euer didde any man of that londe, or ever is like to doo.

Also please it your highnesse to considre howe that The Earl of Ormond is aged, unwieldy, and it behovethe that he that shulde be your Lieutenaunt feeble, and having lost his own castles and lordships from lack of power to defend them, is not likely to keep, conquer, or get any for the King.

there, be a mighti, curregeous and laborous man, to kepe the felde and to make resistence [against] your Ennemyes, in comfort and supportacioun of your true liege people there, and none of these ben seyne ne founde in the said Erle, for both he is aged, vnweldy and vnl[ustie] . . . hath for lak of labour loste in substance alle his castelles, townes and lordeshippes that he had within your said londe, wherfore it is not likly that he shuld kepe, conquere ner gete eny grounde to you, Soverain lorde, that thus hath lost his owne.

He made Irishmen, and the grooms and pages of his household, knights of the shire, to support him in Parliament.

Moreover please it you to wete that at dyvers Parle- mentes, whan that the said Erle hathe had the rule there, he hathe ordeyned and maad Irisshe men and gromes and pages of his housolde knyghtes of the shire, the whiche wolde not in no wyse assent to no good rule, nor to no thing that shulde profite and avaylle to you, soverain Lorde. And also hath suffered dyvers lordes spirituall and temporell to absent pem fro Parleментz here afore, takyng of pem grete fynes to his singuler avaylle, there as the profite shulde be your.

He converted fines levied on those absent from Parliament to his own use.

Also afore this tyme, whan the said Erle stood your lieutenaunt, he toke the Priour of Colan [Recte Conal], oone of the lordes of your Parleмент there, and sent him to Oderes Castell, that is an Irisshe man and your ennemy, the which put him in grete duressse of prisoun, and rampsoured him at c. marcs, without any cause resonable. And in like wyse maad to be enprisoned in the handes of you ennemyes, Jankyn Golan, oone of the citezents of your Cite of Develyne, and David Seman, Gentilman, and rampsoured eche of hem at xlii. And oone Nicholas Galbarry in like wyse, and rampsoured him at c. marcs.

His appointment as Deputy to Lord Welles was deprecated by the Gentlemen and Commons, fearing a breach of the peace by his means,

Also, it please you to consider howe that atte last departire of the Lorde Welles out of your said londe, it was desired by the substance of the gentils and communes of the same londe, that the said Erle shulde in no wise be his Depute, because of grete rygour and brekyng of peas that they dradde him to do, like as he had doone before tyme. Whervpon atte last he was bounde by and finally he was put endenture tripartite to kepe the peas, and be at good under bond rule duryng the tyme that he were Depute to the said to keep the Lieutenaunt; and sith it is so that his feblenesse of rule peace. He is therefore not fit to be Lieutenaunt. was so moche dradde to be Depute, it is to suppos more to be dradde yf he were your Lieutenaunt and had rule himself.

Also, please it your highnesse to be remembred howe He was impeached of treason by the Earl of Marche, Lord Grey, and Lord Talbot, that afore this tyme my Lorde of Marche, my Lorde Grey, whose soulez God assoille, and my Lorde Talbot, that haue been your Lieutenautes of your said londe, Lord Grey, and Lord Talbot, and haue afore this tyme enpeched the said Erle severally of has not been absolved therefrom. many grete tresons, the which stonde yet vndetermined, the which is a grete proof that the said Erle hathe not beene of no good rule and is vnable to have your said londe in governaunce.

Also, ther beene many and dyuers other grete thinges Sundry witnesses to mysdone by the said Erle, the which I may not de- be called to clare for cause of myne ordre. For the declaracioun of testify against him which, please it your highnesse to do come byfore you the things which the messenger may not, as a clergyman, divulge. Lorde Welles, the Baroun of Dudley, Sir Thomas Stanley, sometyme Lieutenauntz of your said londe, Gyles Thortoun, your Tresorer there, and other that haue borne and bere offices there, charging hem by the feithes that they owe to God, and to you, to report to your highnesse the rule of the said Erle done for the tyme that they haue stonde your officers there.

Also, please it your highnesse, the premisses considered, He ought, therefore, to to discharge the said Erle of the said office of Lieu- be super- tenaunt, and to direct a commissioun to certain commis- seded, and a sioners to enquire within your said londe of the matere a commission appointed to comprysed in the said articles, and of the rule and enquire into the accusations made against him. governaunce that the said Erle hath beene of in the tyme that he hath stonde Lieutenaunt there here byfore, over that pat is rehersed aboue, and therevpon to certifie you by writyng, vnder your grete seal, of that pat thei fynde by such inquisicioun, and so ye may haue clere know-lage whether it be for your profite and avaylle for the ease and welfare of your lande that the said Erle be your Lieutenaunt there or not. And the said Erle moste be discharged before that the said inquisicioun be takyne, for he hath so rigorously entreted your pouere people of your said londe before this tyme, that they dar not sey the trouthe while that he stonde the your Lieutenaunt there, without that he be first discharged, lest that for their sothe seying he wolde be more rigorous to hem hereafter than he was before, the which þey might not bere.

Henricus, Dei gratia Rex Anglie et Francie, et Dominus Hibernie, omnibus ad quos presentes littere pervenerint, salutem. Inspeximus quoddam memorandum in rotulis Cancellarie nostre Hibernie irrotulatum in hec verba :—Memorandum quod vicesimo primo die Julii, anno regni Regis Henrici Sexti vicesimo, in quadam Camera Concilii infra castrum Domini Regis Dublinii, habito diligentissimo et urgentissimo tractatu inter nobilem et potentem Dominum Jacobum le Botiller, Comitem de Ormondia, Locum tenentem ejusdem Domini Regis terre sue Hibernie, et Concilium Domini nostri Regis ibidem ; videlicet, Willelmum Chevyr, Deputatum Thesaurarii Domini nostri Regis terre sue Hibernie, Cristoferum Bernevalle, Capitalem Justiciarium Domini nostri Regis ad Placita coram Domino nostro Rege in terra sua Hibernia tenenda, Robertum Dowdalle, Capitalem Justiciarium dicti Domini nostri Regis de Communi Banco suo Hibernie, Johannem Cornewalshe, Capitalem Baronem Scaccarii Domini Regis Hibernie, Robertum Dyke, Custodem Rotulorum Cancellarie Domini nostri Regis Hibernie, Thomam Shorthals, Secundarium Baronem Scaccarii dicti Domini Regis Hibernie, Petrum Clyntoun, unum Baronum Scaccarii predicti, Edwardum Somertoun, Servientem Domini Regis ad Legem, et Ricardum Fitz Eustace, Militem, ac alios de Concilio dicti Domini Regis. Quod cum Ricardus Wogaun, Clericus, nuper Cancellarius dicti Domini nostri Regis in terra sua predicta, in quodam Magno Concilio dicti Domini nostri Regis apud le Naas die Veneris proximo ante festum Translationis Sancti Thome Martiris preterito summonito et tento, ut Cancellarius ejusdem terre, causas summonicionis dicti Magni Concilii ac negotia terre predictae Dominis Spiritualibus et Temporalibus ac Communibus terre predictæ in eodem Concilio comparentibus oretenus de mandato prefati Locum tenentis, prout moris est Cancellario dicte terre, exponeret et declararet; et qualiter prefatus tunc Cancellarius a predicto Concilio noctanter et indiscrete, videlicet subito in nocte diei Mercurii proximo post dictum festum, absque causa rationabili et sine licentia prefati Locum tenentis aut noticia dictorum Dominorum Spiritualium et Temporalium Consilii Domini Regis et Communium habita, cum magno sigillo dicti Domini nostri Regis terre sue predictæ, cum uno homine solummodo, recessit, in dicti Domini Regis dedecus et contemptum ac statutorum in dicto Magno Concilio existentium dispectum, ac legum et consuetudinum dicte terre lesionem et enervacionem, negotiorum dicti Domini nostri Regis et populi sui ejusdem terre in dicto Magno Concilio prosequendorum et expediendorum detrimentum et retardacionem, necnon aliis in futuro exemplum perniciosissimum. Super quo idem Locum tenens, eo quod sibi intimatum extitabat, quod prefatus nuper Cancellarius ad civitatem Dublinii se divertisset, moramque ibidem traxisset, veram causam recessus dicti Cancellarii desiderans, et in premissis remedium congruum de avisamento et assensu dicti Magni Concilii ordinare affectans, dictum Magnum Concilium ad predictam civitatem usque diem Lune proximam post festum Sancti Jacobi Apostoli proximum futurum, eodem statu quo tunc fuerat, ex assensu dictorum Dominorum Spiritualium et Temporalium, adjornavit et continuavit, et in dicto Magno Concilio ad requisicionem dictorum Communium ordinatum fuerat, quod breve dicti Domini nostri Regis eidem Ricardo Wogann ut Cancellario dirigeretur, quod ipse in propria persona sua esset apud dictam civitatem in predicto Magno Concilio dicto die Lune, cum dicto magno sigillo, ad ostendendam causam dicti sui recessus; ac medio tempore dictus Locum tenens, ex animo benevolo, cum diversis personis de Concilio dicti Domini nostri Regis volens cum prefato Ricardo Wogann super premissis communicare, et ipsum Ricardum ut Cancellarium Domini Regis dicte terre in omnibus tractare, dictam civitatem die Dominico proximo ante festum Sancte Margarete Virginis ultimo preterito adivit moram ibidem una cum dictis personis de Concilio Regis dicto die Dominico et die Lune tunc proximo sequente protractando, quibus die Dominico et die Lune prefatus Ricardus Cancellarius ad prefatum Locum tenentem minime venire, seu aliquem suo nomine ad ipsum Locum tenentem per idem tempus mittere, curavit. Et ulterius eodem die Dominico idem Locum tenens, volens cum prefato Ricardo tunc Cancellario ceterisque de Concilio Domini nostri Regis tam pro profectu Domini nostri Regis et terre sue predictae quam super premissa¹ colloquium habere predictum, Servientem ad Legem Stephanem Roche, attornatum dicti Domini nostri Regis, et Johannem Bolt, Custodem Hanaperii dicte Cancellarie, prefato Cancellario misit, ut ipse eidem Locum tenenti ex causis premissis veniret, qui ad hospicium dicti Cancellarii infra dictam civitatem venientes minime ad presenciam dicti Cancellarii venire cum eo loqui potuerunt: set quidam Johannes Shawbery,² Capellanus prefati Cancellarii, eis dicebat, quod prefatus Cancellarius non erat infra civitatem predictam. Qui vero die Lune tunc proximo sequente eadem forma missi predictum Cancellarium minime invenerunt, et consimile responsum a prefato Capellano habuerunt, adjiciendo, fide sua media, post³ idem Cancellarius reveniret ad hospicium predictum infra unam horam tunc proximam sequentem. Ac die Martis tunc proximo sequente publica vox fuit et fama per totam civitatem predictam et commitatum Dublinii, quod prefatus Ricardus Wogann grandem navem apud Houth, infra commitatum Dublinii predictum, dicto die Lune quasi hora sexta post horam nonam arripuit, et versus partes Wallie transfretavit, magnum sigillum regni tunc in custodia sua existens prefato Locum tenenti et Concilio Domini Regis minime deliberando, seu in Thesaurario Domini Regis mittendo seu deferendo. Cujus custodie dictum magnum sigillum fuit relictum, aut regimen commissum, viis et modis quibus inquiri poterat, inquisitum est, et minime scire poterat. Quapropter prefatus Locum tenens, ex assensu Concilii dicti Domini Regis, Vicecomiti Dublinii ac Majori et Ballivis dicte civitatis ex parte dicti Domini nostri Regis mandavit, firmiter injungens quod ipsi infra ballivas suas in dicta civitate et commitatu, ac aliis villis mercatoriis et portubus, publice proclamari facerent, quod quicumque dictum magnum sigillum Domini nostri Regis habens, illud, sub forisfactura omnium que erga eundem Dominum nostrum Regem forisfacere poterit, haberet coram dicto Locum tenente et Concilio apud Dublinium die Veneris tunc proximo futuro, ac eis tunc illud deliberaret: quo die Veneris dictus Willielmus Chevyr, deputatus Thesaurarii terre predictae, in quadam Camera Concilii infra monasterium Sancte Thome Martyris juxta Dublinium, prefato Locum tenenti et Concilio declaravit, quod quidem frater Thomas Nortoun, de ordine Fratrum Predicatorum Mendicantium, die Jovis proximo preterito circa horam decimam ante horam nonam, quandam parvam cistam portatoriam, ceratam ac sigillatam cum quodam signeto in quo erant ymages Crucifixi, Marie, et Johannis, in qua dictum magnum sigillum fore asseruit, in Thesauraria predicta deliberavit, dicendo quod quidem, audiens dictam proclamacionem, dictam cistam sic ceratam et sigillatam sub et in confessione sibi deliberavit, ut ipse dictum magnum sigillum in Thesauraria predicta liberaret. Et quia dubium erat prefato Locum tenenti et Concilio, si predictum magnum sigillum in dicta cista extiterit necne, prefatus Locum tenens tunc mandavit prefato Deputato Thesaurarii, assumpto secum residuo dicti Concilii Regis, quod ad dictam Thesaurariam accederet, et dictam cistam aperiret, ad cognoscendum si dictum sigillum in dicta cista foret, an non : qui vero ad Thesaurariam predictam juxta mandatum prefati Locum tenentis euntes, ac dictam cistam in forma predicta ceratam et sigillatam reperientes, cistam predictam aperire fecerunt, et dictum magnum sigillum in quadam бага correa, eodem signeto sigillata, infra dictam cistam invenerunt, prout idem Deputatus Thesaurarii et residuum de Concilio Regis eidem Locum tenenti in readventu suo referebant. Ulteriusque prefatus Locum tenens de custodia et regimine dicti magni sigilli a predicto die Lune, quo idem Ricardus sic dictam navem suam arripuit transfretare,¹ usque dictum diem Jovis, quo die idem Frater Mendicans dictum magnum sigillum in dictam Thesaurariam liberavit, plenissime cupiens assertiri, de assensu Concilii Regis predicti mandavit pro prefato Fratre ad comparandum coram eisdem Locum tenenti et Concilio super premissis examinandum et veritatem dicturum, qui quidem Frater eodem die veniens coram ipsis, tactis sacrosanctis Dei Evangeliiis, juratus et examinatus dicit, quod quidam animo penitenti et contrito, dicto die Jovis, quando ipse paratus erat missam Beate Marie Virginis in domo Fratrum Predicatorum Dublinii celebrare, ad ipsum venit, eum benigne requirens ut ille suam confessionem clementer audiret, et in confessione sua inter alia confessum fuit, quod ipse dictum magnum sigillum infra dictam cistam in forma predicta inclusum habuit, ac dictum magnum sigillum prefato Fratri ex causa dicte proclamacionis tunc liberavit, ipsum humillime requirens, quod festinatione qua poterit, illud in dictam Thesaurariam liberaret Cujus pretextu idem Frater, post dictam missam celebratam, predictum magnum sigillum quancito poterit in dictam Thesaurariam liberavit. Requisitus quis eidem magnum sigillum deliberavit, an religiosus aut secularis, dixit quod non posset nec vellet ullo modo hoc revelare. Prefatus Frater ulterius tunc requisitus si noticiam habuisset de regimine seu custodia dicti magni sigilli a predicto transitu ipsius Ricardi Wogann usque illud tempus, quo dictum magnum sigillum sic sibi fuit deliberatum—qui dixit super dictum sacramentum suum, quod qualiter dictum magnum sigillum per idem tempus fuit gubernatum seu custoditum penitus ignoravit. Postmodumque, eodem vicesimo primo die, prefatus Deputatus Thesaurarii et Camerarius Scaccarii terre predictae predictum magnum sigillum in Thesaurariam predictam, ut predicitur, nuper positum, de mandato predicti Locum tenentis eis facto, in dictam Cameram Concilii infra dictum castrum portaverunt, et illud in dicta бага dicto signeto sigillata eidem Locum tenenti in presencia dicti Concilii deliberarunt. Qui quidem Locum tenens dictam bagam aperiens, et dictum magnum sigillum adinvicem separans, in utra parte dicti magni sigilli comperit albam ceram quasi recentem, et, ut prefato Locum tenenti, et Concilio videbatur, de recenti et nova sigillatione existentem. Ibidem tunc presentibus predicto Custode Rotulorum ac Custode Hanaperii predicti, Willielmo Mape, Spigurnello, sive Calefactore Cere in dicta Cancellaria, ac aliis de eadem Cancellaria, qui sigillationi dicti magni sigilli interesse solebant, qui vero super sacramentis suis Domino nostro Regi prefatis stricte examinati, si dicta cera relicta fuerit in sigillo predicto, tempore quo ipsi viderunt seu eorum aliquis viderit sigillationem predicto magno sigillo ultimam factam,¹ qui dixerunt, quod non. nimum admirantes et stupentes dixerunt, quod non cognoverunt, nec aliquis eorum cognovit, aut unquam ante viderunt aut vidit dictum signetum cum dicto Ricardo Wogann seu aliquo alio. Insuperque eodem vicesimo primo Julii ibidem infra dictum castrum habita diligente et urgente tractatu inter eundem Locum tenentem et Concilium dicti Domini Regis, qualiter officium Cancellarii dicte terre per hujusmodi transitum ipsius Ricardi Wogann extra eandem terram vacabat, ob quod negocia tam Domini nostri Regis quam partium in Cancellaria predicta prosequenda et expedienda cum eodem magno sigillo a jam diu¹ sigillari minime potuerunt, in dicti Domini Regis et fidelis populi sui Hibernie dampnum non modicum et gravamen; quapropter iidem Locum tenens et Concilium regium, videntes pericula que dicto Domino nostro Regi et dicto populo suo in hac parte faciliter possint evenire ratione premissorum, per eosdem Locum tenentem et Concilium secundum consuetudinem terre predictae concordatum est et ordinatum, quod Ricardus FitzEustas, Miles, sit Cancellarius ejusdem Domini nostri Regis terre predictae, habendum et occupandum officium predictum quamdiu dicto Domino nostro Regi placuerit, percipiendum de eodem Domino nostro Rege annuatim in officio illo vadia et feoda eidem officio debita et consueta. Et quod super hoc literae Domini nostri Regis patentes in forma debita sub sigillo predicto eidem Ricardo FitzEustace fiant, et quod premissa in Cancellaria predicta irrotulentur, ut ibidem fiant similiter de recordo. Nos autem memorandum predictum ad requisicionem prefati Locum nostrum tenentis tenore presencium duximus exemplificandum. In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Item prefatus Locum tenens declaravit quomodo serenissimus Dominus noster Rex misit pro ipso Locum tenente, ut ipse ad presenciam ipsius Domini Regis veniret, cujus mandato ipse paratus est, et omni tempore paratus esse vult, obedire, et omni festinatione possibili ad presenciam ipsius Domini Regis accedere intendit. Quibus declaratis idem Locum tenens desideravit a predictis Dominis Spiritualibus et Temporalibus, Generosis, Civibus et Burgensibus, ut ipsi coram Consilio predicto et prefato Roberto quid in premissis sentirent de persona sua regimine et transitu suis dicerent. Qui Domini, Generosi, ac ceteri Cives et Burgenses, a dicto Domino Locum tenente licenciam petierunt, ut ad partem de premissis communicarent, et quid in premissis sentirent, coram dicto Consilio et dicto Roberto referrent. Qui, post aliqualis temporis intervallum domum Consilii Regis predictam reintrantes, per Jacobum Alleyne militem, suum prolocutorem communi assensu electum, ad singula, ut sequitur, dabant responsum. Et quod ad primum, dictus Jacobus Alleyne dixit quod predicti Domini Spirituales et Temporales, Generosi, Cives et Burgenses dicant, quod non erat aliquis ibidem qui in aliquo conqueri poterit de predicto Locum tenente, set in toto et plene regraciantur sibi de sua bona et graciosia dominacione, et sua laborosa terre predictae defensione, et quod ipse populo terre predictae multum fuit necessarius. Ad secundum articulum dicunt dicti Domini, Generosi, Cives et Communes plene et plane quod predictus Dominus Locum tenens pro custodia terre predictae habuit grandes et continuas labores in corpore suo proprio durantibus terminis quibus in dictis officiis stetit, et ultra omnia vadia, que a domino Rege cepit, ac omnia subsidia per Dominos Spirituales et Temporales et Communes terre predictae sibi concessa, et solutionem multam de bonis suis propriis, ad honorem Domini Regis et defensionem terre predictae, expendidit. Ad tercium articulum dicti Domini Spirituales et Tem-porales, predicti Cives et Burgenses, dicunt protestando quod non est ipsorum intencionis consulere dicto Domino Locum tenenti, neque ab eo desiderare ut expectet, contra mandatum dicti Domini Regis, licet terra predicta in sua absencia in magno staret periculo, set supplicaverunt Ricardum Wogaune Cancellarium Domini Regis terre sue predictae, et Fratrem Hugonem Mideltoune Turcupellarium de Rodys, ac predictum Robertum Manfelde Armigerum, quod ipsi vel eorum aliquis, qui ad selsitudinem metuendissimi Domini nostri Regis et ejus presenciam citius quam dictus Dominus Locum tenens securum possit habere passagium, advenerint, quod illi vel ille vellent seu vellet declarare majestati regie predictae grandes confederaciones Hibernicorum inimicorum et Anglicorum rebellium dicti Domini Regis in terra sua predicta in destruccionem ligeorum ejusdem Domini Regis terre sue predictae, et si placeret selsitudini sue predictae, quod predictus Locum tenens possit expectare in terra Hibernia predicta usque ad festum Sancti Michaelis nunc proximum futurum, ita quod populus suus ligeus ejusdem terre poterit grana anni jam instantis colligere et inhorriare, [quod] esset dicto populo suo ligo ejusdem terre magnum confortamen et relevamen, ac Hibernicis inimicis Domini Regis predictis magna confusio. Et quod predicti Cancellarius, Turcupellarius et Robertus, et eorum quilibet, facerent eorum debitam dilligenciam et labores penes metuendissimum Dominum Regem predictum pro ejusdem Locum tenentis expeditione et accelleracione, ac pro solutione vadium Domini Regis aretro sibi existencium, ita quod cicius poterit penes selsitudinem regiam se expedire, ac ad partes Hibernie predictae cum tali retinencia solucionequae vadium eidem a Domino Rege sibi debitorum et aretro existencium, et spe graciose solucionis futurorum revenire, et quod poterit dicto Domino Rege tendere ad honorem, ac terre sue predictae pauperrime et populi ligei ejusdem defencionem.

Quibus sic declaratis, idem Jacobus Alleyne nomine Dominorum, Procerum ac aliorum prenominatorum supplicavit dictum Dominum Locum tenentem mandare premissa inactitari. Unde idem Dominus Locum tenens ad suam requisitionem mandavit omnia premissa inactitari et in Rotulis Cancellarie de recordo remanere. REPRESENTATIONS FROM THE LORD JUSTICE AND COUNCIL
OF IRELAND TO THE KING.¹

The Justice and Council of Ireland offer suggestions to the King for the improvement of his revenue in Ireland.

A nostre Seigneur le Roi monstront voz Justice, Chaunceller, Tresorer, et autres de votre Conseil Dirlaunde, que come ils, desirantz votre profit faire, eient ordeine, et soient entour de faire plusours profitz a vous, ascuns qont este emblez de vous, et ascuns autres qont de long temps dormez par defaute des ministres cy, et ascuns pour cause des mandementz purchacez en Engleterre par fauses suggestions, mes ils entendent par tieux suggestions et brocages estre destourbez si vous meismes Seigneur ne y mettez eide et defens pour

To our Lord the King your Justice, Chancellor, Treasurer, and others of your Council of Ireland shew, that as they, desiring to promote your advantage, have ordained, and are about to make many profits for you, some of which are from you purloined, and some others are for a long time dormant by default of officers here, and some by reason of orders procured in England by false suggestions; but they expect to be troubled by such suggestions and brokages if yourself, Sire, do not afford aid and defence

monde, and twenty-four knights, whose recognisances were estreated, and the penalties levied with great rigour on all but the Earls of Ulster and Ormonde and two others by the Lord Justice, Sir Ralph D'Ufford, in 1346, Desmond having refused to appear at the Parliament held at Dublin in June 1345, and summoned his fellow nobles to meet him at Callan in Kerry. The most probable date of this document is, therefore, about the latter end of the latter year. The writing is contemporary.

meismes voz ministres; et sont les articles touchez en ceste roule brevement dont les profitz sourderont.

Response. Le Roi etc.¹

Premierement, par serche en Leschequer cy sont trevez diverses grosses summes de clere dette, que amontont a tresgrande somme, et qont reposez de long temps saunz proces de les lever, et plusours de meismes les dettes ont este respitez par voz mandementz hors Dengleterre, a grant damage de vous.

Debts of large amount due to the King are not levied.

Item, releves duës a vous des heritages et terres tenuz de vous en Irlaunde, que amontont a une tresgrande somme, ne feurent vnques demaundez ne levez en Irlaunde, et ceo moult pour defaute des sachantz ministres a grant damage etc.

The reliefs due to the King were never levied.

Item, de voz custumes Dirlaunde, dont un des greindres profitz de votre terre deveroit sourdre, vous avez to your said ministers; and the articles from which the profits will arise are briefly expressed in this roll.

Answer. The King &c.

Firstly, by search in the Exchequer here there are found certain large sums of clear debt, which come to a very great amount, and which have lain for a long time without process to levy them, and the greater part of these debts are respited by your orders out of England, to your great damage.

Item, the reliefs due to you of inheritances and lands held of you in Ireland, which amount to a very great sum, were never demanded nor levied in Ireland, and this in a great degree for want of skilled officers, to great damage &c.

Item, as to your Customs of Ireland, whereof one of your greatest sources of profit ought to arise, you have suffered too este trop desceuz et damagez, pour defaute de garde de Customers, et autres ministres a ceo deputez, et pour defaute auxint de votre Court Dirlaunde, qad nul temps passe covenable eide ne remede fait.

The Chief Customer has his office for life, and is non-resident, and his fee of 80*l*. amounts to nearly the rest of the Customs.

Item, le Chief Customer ad la garde des custumes Dirlaunde a terme de vie, et prent de vous qatre vintz livres par an pour son fee, que amonte apoy a la value du remenant de voz custumes, sicome est tesmoigne, et qi ne demoert pas en la terre, ne se melle meismes riens de la dite garde, mes la resceyte de son fee nest pas oblye.

The Escheatours seldom account, and retain the escheats in their own hands. The Council have commenced to extend these lands again, and find much loss and damage, for want of care on the part of the Customers and other officers thereto deputed, and by default also of your Court of Ireland, which has never afforded fitting help or remedy.

Item, the Chief Customer has the charge of the Customs of Ireland for his life, and takes of you four score pounds annually for his fee, which amounts to within a little of the value of the remainder of your Customs, as is testified, and does not dwell in the land, nor take part in the said charge, but the receiving of his fee is not forgotten.

Item, those who have been Escheators of Ireland, who ought to account each year at least, have seldom accounted, and who commonly retain in their hands lands, forfeitures, escheats, wardes, and other things which are seized into your hand, and they are not charged, as was testified, except by those extents which they make themselves ; and so for your great advantage

Item, homme entent que si ces deux offices soient bien ordeinez, sicome homme est entour, et bien gardez, saunz faire disturbance hors Dengleterre, que les profitz ent amonteront, bien pres, a la value de totes les rentes que vous prenez de voz terres et fermes des citees et grantes villes en Irlaunde retenues en votre mayn, et en cas a plus, si voz ministres chiefs et auters des places y mettent lour diligences et travaux, et ne soient destourbez, come desus est dit.

If these two offices were properly executed the King's revenue would be greatly increased.

Item, les Fraunchises grantez en Irlaunde, que sont regales, tieles come Duresme et Cestre, vous oustont si bien de les grantz profitz come de grant partie de obeissance des persones enfraunchies ; et en chescune it was agreed upon by the Council here, that the Justice and his place should enquire, and should extend these same lands anew in the counties through which they should pass, and this they have commenced in several counties, where they find the value thereof greatly to exceed the Escheators' extents, and some lands of a double value, and some more.

Item, it is plain that if these two offices should be well ordered, as they are about to do, and taken good care of by the officers, without disturbance from England, that the profits thereof shall well nigh amount to the value of all the rents which you receive from your lands and the farms of cities and great towns in Ireland retained in your hand, and perchance to more, if your chief officers of the places and others give their diligence and labour thereto, and be not disturbed, as is above observed.

Item, the Liberties granted in Ireland, which are regal, like Durham and Chester, oust you as well out of large profits as of a great part of the obedience of the persons to whom the Liberties are granted; and in each Liberty there is a Chancery, an Exchequer, and cognisance of Pleas as well of the Crown as of other Common Pleas, and they also grant Charters of Pardon; and are often by law, and for reasonable cause, seized into your hand, to your great profit, and lightly restored by orders out of England, to the damage &c.

Item, it seems good for the right and profit of you and your crown, that you give orders to your Council, that by no suggestions should lands, liberties, offices, bailliwicks, or other things seized into your hand for just cause, be passed out of your hand until you and your Council there be certified thereof by your Council here, because such orders have caused very great damage.

Item, the Court here begins to issue process to distrain those who ought to do homage to you, and have not done it, or make fine to have respite for a short time; whereby you will have profit if this be not disturbed by orders out of England.

Item, endroit de les maynpernours le Counte de Dessemond, la Justice, par avys des Chaunceller et Tresorer ad comence de mettre la busoigne en oevre en manere come il feust chargez par le Conseil Dengleterre, de quele exploit vous et votre conseil serrez certifiez deinz brief temps.

The Lord Justice has taken in hand the business relative to the bail of the Earl of Desmond, as he was charged by the Council of England.

Item, tut soit ce que vous eiez recoveri par jugement en votre Eschequier Dirlaunde devers le Priour de Lantony juxt Gloucester, qad larges possessions en Irlaunde, m.ccc.lx. marks, nyent mayns le dit Priour pursuyt en Engleterre par colourez suggestions de vous ouster de ceu profit ; par qoi semble a votre Conseil par-decea de vous bien aviser avant que riens soit fait au contraire de cel jugement a damage de vous, et que vous pleise ent comander votre volunte, en excusacion de voz ministres cy, queux covient estre defenduz par vous ; si votre dite terre cy, votre poeple, et vos busoignes doivent estre duement governez.

The King should be well advised by his Council before he remits to the Prior of Lanthony the 1,360 marks recovered against him in the Irish Exchequer.

[TRANSLATION.]

Item, in regard to the sureties of the Earl of Dessemond, the Justice, by advice of the Chancellor and Treasurer, has begun to take the business in hand, in manner as he was charged by the Council of England, the result of which shall be certified to you and your Council within a short time.

Item, albeit that you have recovered one thousand three hundred and sixty marks by judgment in your Exchequer of Ireland against the Prior of Lantony near Gloucester, who has large possessions in Ireland, nevertheless the said Prior makes suit in England by means of colourable suggestions to oust you of that profit ; wherefore it beseems your Council here well to advise you before anything is done contrary to the said judgment to your damage, and that you will please to signify your pleasure thereupon, to the excusing of your officers here, whom it behoves you to defend ; thus your land here, your people, and your affairs shall be properly governed.

cery has but

Item, in your Chancery in Ireland there is only one Clerk, and one Petty Clerk, but not one of them knows anything that appertains to the Office of the Rolls, nor can do in his place any business if it be only a little out of course, nor make a writ properly, whereby your crown has experienced very great detriments and losses; and your Chancellor, who has hitherto borne the charge of making these briefs, cannot support this charge in addition to the other charges which he has about your important affairs; therefore need were that some learned Clerk of the Office of the Rolls, and able to make writs of the forms to him commanded, should speedily be sent into Ireland.

Item, in your Exchequer here where the profits of your land ought to be levied, and you answered thereout, and many great affairs handled and judged, there is none that understands either the course, or the despatch, or the furtherance, or the discussion of the business which belongs to that place, whereby you and your people have been most grievously

CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

[IMPERIAL 8vo., cloth. Price 15s. each Volume or Part.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although "the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world," and although "they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes."

Acting upon the recommendations of the Committees of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction of the Master of the Rolls :—

CALENDARIUM GENEALOGICUM; for the Reigns of Henry III. and Edward I.
Edited by CHARLES ROBERTS, Esq., Secretary of the Public Record Office. 2 Vols. 1865.

This is a work of great value for elucidating the early history of our nobility and landed gentry.

Vol. I., the Scottish Series, of the Reigns of Henry VIII., Edward VI., Mary, and Elizabeth, 1509-1589.

Vol. II., the Scottish Series, of the Reign of Elizabeth, 1589-1603; an Appendix to the Scottish Series, 1543-1592; and the State Papers relating to Mary Queen of Scots during her Detention in England, 1568-1587.

These two volumes of State Papers relate to Scotland, and embrace the period between 1509 and 1603. In the second volume are notices of the State Papers relating to Mary Queen of Scots.

CALENDAR OF DOCUMENTS relating to IRELAND, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, London. Edited by HENRY SAVAGE SWEETMAN, Esq., B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, Barrister-at-Law (Ireland). 1875-1877.

Vol. I.—1171-1251.

Vol. II. 1252-1284.

These volumes contain a Calendar of all documents relating to Ireland, preserved in the Public Record Office, London; the work is to be continued to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS relating to IRELAND, OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY VIII., EDWARD VI., MARY, AND ELIZABETH, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by HANS CLAUDE HAMILTON, Esq., F.S.A. 1860-1867.

Vol. I.—1509-1573.

Vol. II.—1574-1585.

The above have been published under the editorship of Mr. Hans Claude Hamilton; another volume is in the press.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS relating to IRELAND, OF THE REIGN OF JAMES I., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, and elsewhere. Edited by the Rev. C. W. RUSSELL, D.D., and JOHN P. PRENDERGAST, Esq., Barrister-at-Law. 1872-1877.

Vol. I.—1603-1606.

Vol. III.—1608-1610.

Vol. II.—1606-1608.

Vol. IV.—1611-1614.

This series is in continuation of the Irish State Papers commencing with the reign of Henry VIII.; but, for the reign of James I., the Papers are not confined to those in the Public Record Office, London.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, COLONIAL SERIES, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, and elsewhere. Edited by W. NOEL SAINSBURY, Esq. 1860-1870.

Vol. I.—America and West Indies, 1574-1660.

Vol. II.—East Indies, China, and Japan, 1513-1616.

Vol. III.—East Indies, China, and Japan, 1617-1621.

These volumes include an analysis of early Colonial Papers in the Public Record Office, the India Office, and the British Museum.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS AND PAPERS, FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC, OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, the British Museum, &c. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1862-1876.

Vol. I.—1509-1514.

Vol. IV.—Introduction.

Vol. II. (in Two Parts)—1515-1518.

Vol. IV., Part 1.—1524-1526.

Vol. III. (in Two Parts)—1519-1523.

Vol. IV., Part 2.—1526-1528.

Vol. IV., Part 3.—1529-1530.

These volumes contain summaries of all State Papers and Correspondence relating to the reign of Henry VIII., in the Public Record Office, of those formerly in the State Paper Office, in the British Museum, the Libraries of Oxford and Cambridge, and other Public Libraries; and of all letters that have appeared in print in the works of Burnet, Strype, and others. Whatever authentic original material exists in England relative to the religious, political, parliamentary, or social history of the country during the reign of Henry VIII., whether despatches of ambassadors, or proceedings of the army, navy, treasury, or ordnance, or records of Parliament, appointments of officers, grants from the Crown, &c., will be found calendared in these volumes.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD VI., preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. 1547-1553. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, and Correspondant du Comité Impérial des Travaux Historiques et des Sociétés Savantes de France. 1861.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF MARY, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. 1553-1558. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law and Correspondant du Comité Impérial des Travaux Historiques et des Sociétés Savantes de France. 1861.

The two preceding volumes exhibit the negotiations of the English ambassadors with the courts of the Emperor Charles V. of Germany, of Henry II. of France, and of Philip II. of Spain. The affairs of several of the minor continental states also find various incidental illustrations of much interest.

A valuable series of Papers descriptive of the circumstances which attended the loss of Calais merits a special notice; while the progress of the wars in the north of France, into which England was dragged by her union with Spain, is narrated at some length. The domestic affairs of England are of course passed over in these volumes, which treat only of its relations with foreign powers.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS, FOREIGN SERIES, OF THE REIGN OF ELIZABETH, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office, &c. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, (Vols. I.-VII.), and ALLAN JAMES CROSBY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law, (Vols. VIII.-X.) 1863-1876.

Vol. I.—1558-1559.
Vol. II.—1559-1560.
Vol. III.—1560-1561.
Vol. IV.—1561-1562.
Vol. V.—1562.

Vol. VI.—1563.
Vol. VII.—1564-1565.
Vol. VIII.—1566-1568.
Vol. IX.—1569-1571.
Vol. X.—1572-1574.

These volumes contain a Calendar of the Foreign Correspondence during the early portion of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, deposited in the Public Record Office, &c. They illustrate not only the external but also the domestic affairs of Foreign Countries during that period.

CALENDAR OF TREASURY PAPERS, preserved in Her Majesty's Public Record Office. Edited by JOSEPH REDINGTON, Esq. 1868-1874.

Vol. I.—1557-1696.
Vol. II.—1697-1702.

Vol. III.—1702-1707.

The above Papers connected with the affairs of the Treasury comprise petitions, reports, and other documents relating to services rendered to the State, grants of money and pensions, appointments to offices, remissions of fines and duties, &c. They illustrate civil and military events, finance, the administration in Ireland and the Colonies, &c., and afford information nowhere else recorded.

CALENDAR OF THE CAREW PAPERS, preserved in the Lambeth Library. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London; and WILLIAM BULLEN, Esq. 1867-1873.

Vol. I.—1515-1574.
Vol. II.—1575-1588.
Vol. III.—1589-1600.
Vol. IV.—1601-1603.

Vol. V.—Book of Howth; Miscellaneous.
Vol. VI.—1603-1624.

The Carew Papers relating to Ireland, deposited in the Lambeth Library, are unique, and of great importance. The Calendar (now completed) cannot fail to be welcome to all students of Irish history.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS, DESPATCHES, AND STATE PAPERS, relating to the Negotiations between England and Spain, preserved in the Archives at Simancas, and elsewhere. Edited by G. A. BERGENROTH. 1862-1868.

Vol. I.—Hen. VII.—1485-1509.

Vol. II.—Hen. VIII.—1509-1525.

Supplement to Vol. I. and Vol. II.

Mr. Bergenroth was engaged in compiling a Calendar of the Papers relating to England preserved in the archives of Simancas in Spain, and the corresponding portion removed from Simancas to Paris. Mr. Bergenroth also visited Madrid, and examined the Papers there, bearing on the reign of Henry VIII. The first volume contains the Spanish Papers of the reign of Henry VII.; the second volume, those of the first portion of the reign of Henry VIII. The Supplement contains new information relating to the private life of Queen Katharine of England; and to the projected marriage of Henry VII. with Queen Juana, widow of King Philip of Castile, and mother of the Emperor Charles V.

CALENDAR OF LETTERS, DESPATCHES, AND STATE PAPERS, relating to the Negotiations between England and Spain, preserved in the Archives at Simancas, and elsewhere. Edited by DON PASCUAL DE GAYANGOS. 1873-1877.

Vol. III., Part 1.—Hen. VIII.—1525-1526.

Vol. III., Part 2.—Hen. VIII.—1527-1529.

Upon the death of Mr. Bergenroth, Don Pascual de Gayangos was appointed to continue the Calendar of the Spanish State Papers. He has pursued a similar plan to that of his predecessor, but has been able to add much valuable matter from Brussels and Vienna, with which Mr. Bergenroth was unacquainted.

CALENDAR OF STATE PAPERS AND MANUSCRIPTS, relating to ENGLISH AFFAIRS, preserved in the Archives of Venice, &c. Edited by RAWDON BROWN, Esq. 1864-1877.

Vol. I.—1202-1509.

Vol. II.—1509-1519.

Vol. III.—1520-1526.

Vol. IV.—1527-1533.

Vol. V.—1534-1554.

Vol. VI., Part I.—1555-1556.

Mr. Rawdon Brown's researches have brought to light a number of valuable documents relating to various periods of English history; his contributions to historical literature are of the most interesting and important character.

SYLLABUS, IN ENGLISH, OF RYMER'S FŒDERA. By Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. Vol. I.—Will. I.—Edw. III.; 1066-1377. Vol. II.—Ric. II.—Chas. II.; 1377-1654. 1869-1873.

The "Fœdera," or "Rymer's Fœdera," is a collection of miscellaneous documents illustrative of the History of Great Britain and Ireland, from the Norman Conquest to the reign of Charles II. Several editions of the "Fœdera" have been published, and the present Syllabus was undertaken to make the contents of this great National Work more generally known.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

[ROYAL 8vo., half-bound. Price 10s. each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that an uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm, and assured His Majesty that whatever expense might be necessary for this purpose would be made good."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (being written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house; and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom. The work is printed for the first time.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Saint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Æduuardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines, addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., and probably written in the year 1245, on the occasion of the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author. The second is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between the years 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. It does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, but is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time. The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between the years 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA; scilicet, I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. II.—Adas de Marisco Epistolæ. III.—Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniæ. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1858.

This volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It has been the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical information could be found in this country, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these have been before printed.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from being the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. When written, the disputes of the school-men had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries. Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The work gives a good idea of the controversies at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND ; or, A Metrical Version of the History of Hector Boece ; by WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, and was written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends, and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for in such a work as this ; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true ; and the chronicle is valuable as a reflection of the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed. The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this metrical version, and the student of language will find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three distinct parts, each having its own separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, and extends from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, and extends from the accession of Henry I. in the year 1100, to the year 1446, which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of King Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world.

Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for the history of which period his work is of some value.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The author was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS) : Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366 ; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, Esq., B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books, and contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH: Bernardi Andreæ Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1858.

The contents of this volume are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in the year 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest in connexion with the period are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhams Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici, written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are printed for the first time.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III., Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859–1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. It gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and early part of the fifteenth centuries.

The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the fourteenth century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the Record Room of the City of London, though some portion in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the twelfth, thirteenth, and early part of the fourteenth centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in the year 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to the year 1292, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, which are not to be elsewhere obtained, and some curious facts are mentioned relative to the floods in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859-1861.

These Poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are various in character; some are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another. The period comprised is in itself interesting, and brings us, through the decline of the feudal system, to the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable value to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—never before printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon: also a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologiae."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA; 449-1298: necnon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. 1399-1404. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events. The period requires much elucidation; to which it will materially contribute.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and against their general doctrines the "Repressor" is directed. Pecock took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Pecock, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIÆ. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in the year 447, and come down to the year 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle, which was also used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout, though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. Davids, by Blegewryd, Archdeacon of Llandaff, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V., VI., and VII. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1861–1877.

These volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. Davids to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Giraldus has made due use. Only extracts from these treatises have been printed before, and almost all of them are taken from unique manuscripts.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in the year 1183, the second in 1185–6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon. The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about the year 1188 and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of acts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a prosaic truthful history.

Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Kambrise et Descriptio Kambrise: and Vol. VII., the lives of S. Remigius, and S. Hugh.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.

The letters and papers contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Dépôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the line of policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and such other provinces of France as had been acquired by Henry V. We may here trace, step by step, the gradual declension of the English power, until we are prepared to read of its final overthrow.

23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to the year 1154, is justly the boast of England; for no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, either in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In this edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1861-1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from these documents is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III.; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE, illustrative of the Social Condition of his Time. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources, and a large portion of them is printed for the first time. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066-1200. Vol. III.; 1200-1327. By Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862-1871.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages; the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which the original portions are distinguished from those which are mere compilations. When possible, the sources are indicated from which such compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice has also been given of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. Vol. I., 1216-1235. Vol. II., 1236-1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862-1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly in the Tower of London, and now in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of them, especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is printed for the first time.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI.—1. THOMÆ WALSINGHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA; Vol. I., 1272-1381: Vol. II., 1381-1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1307. 3. JOHANNIS DE TROKELowe ET HENRICI DE BLANEFORDE CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1296; 1307-1324; 1392-1406. 4. GESTA ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, A THOMÆ WALSINGHAM, REGNANTE RICARDO SECUNDO, EJUSDEM ECCLESIE PRÆCENTORE, COMPILATA; Vol. I., 793-1290: Vol. II., 1290-1349: Vol. III., 1349-1411. 5. JOHANNIS AMUNDESHAM, MONACHI MONASTERII S. ALBANI, UT VIDETUR, ANNALES; Vols. I. and II. 6. REGISTRA QUORUNDAM ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, QUI SÆCULO XV^{mo} FLORUERE; Vol. I., REGISTRUM ABBATIS JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, ABBATIS MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, ITERUM SUSCEPTÆ; ROBERTO BLAKENEY, CAPELLANO, QUONDAM ADSRIPTUM: Vol. II., REGISTRA JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, WILLELMI ALBON, ET WILLELMI WALINGFORDE, ABBATUM MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, CUM APPENDICE, CONTINENTE QUASDAM EPISTOLAS, A JOHANNES WHETHAMSTEDE CONSCRIPTAS. 7. YPODIGMA NEUSTRIÆ, A THOMÆ WALSINGHAM, QUONDAM MONACHO MONASTERII S. ALBANI, CONSCRIPTUM. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Cambridge and Oxford; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1876.

In the first two volumes is a History of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., by Thomas Walsingham, Precentor of St. Albans, from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arms, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the third volume is a Chronicle of English History, attributed to William Rishanger, who lived in the reign of Edward I., from the Cotton MS. Faustina B. IX. in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219-231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cotton MS. Claudius E. III., fols. 306-331: an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol, 1291-1292, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., also attributed to William Rishanger, but on no sufficient ground: a short Chronicle of English History, 1293 to 1300, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton Claudius D. VI. : a short Chronicle, Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi, Regis Angliæ, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: and fragments of three Chronicles of English History, 1285 to 1307.

In the fourth volume is a Chronicle of English History, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI. : Annals of Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, and a continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henry de Blanford, both from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI. : a full Chronicle of English History, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and an account of the Benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the fifteenth century, from MS. VI. in the same Library.

The fifth, sixth, and seventh volumes contain a history of the Abbots of St. Albans, 793 to 1411, mainly compiled by Thomas Walsingham, from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum : with a Continuation, from the closing pages of Parker MS. VII., in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The eighth and ninth volumes, in continuation of the Annals, contain a Chronicle, probably by John Anundesham, a monk of St. Albans.

The tenth and eleventh volumes relate especially to the acts and proceedings of Abbots Whethamstede, Albon, and Wallingford, and may be considered as a memorial of the chief historical and domestic events during those periods.

The twelfth volume contains a compendious History of England to the reign of Henry V., and of Normandy in early times, also by Thomas Walsingham, and dedicated to Henry V. The compiler has often substituted other authorities in place of those consulted in the preparation of his larger work.

29. CHRONICON ABBATIE EVESHAMENSIS, AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE EVESHAMIE ET THOMA DE MARLEBERGE ABBATE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, M.A., Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is for the first time printed.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIÆ. Vol. I., 447-871. Vol. II., 872-1066. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863-1869.

The compiler, Richard of Cirencester, was a monk of Westminster, 1355-1400. In 1391 he obtained a licence to make a pilgrimage to Rome. His history, in four books, extends from 447 to 1066. He announces his intention of continuing it, but there is no evidence that he completed any more. This chronicle gives many charters in favour of Westminster Abbey, and a very full account of the lives and miracles of the saints, especially of Edward the Confessor, whose reign occupies the fourth book. A treatise on the Coronation, by William of Sudbury, a monk of Westminster, fills book iii. c. 3. It was on this author that C. J. Bertram fathered his forgery, De Situ Britannia, in 1747.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 21-22, 30-31, and 32-33. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1873.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, and have been held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and were received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of the attention of the general reader on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

32. NARRATIVES OF THE EXPULSION OF THE ENGLISH FROM NORMANDY, 1449-1450.—Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normannia: Le Recouvrement de Normendie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conférences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited, from MSS. in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in the year 1450. The history commences with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fougères, and ends with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The whole period embraced is less than two years.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRE. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863-1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester. The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucester, the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINÆ SAPIENTIÆ. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century. In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities." Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century. The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Naturis Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre; and though there are many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole, above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARCRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1864-1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the times, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of Anglo-Saxon orthography.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066-1282; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066-1263; Annales de Burton, 1004-1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519-1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1-1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1-1297; Annales Monasterii de Bermundessia, 1042-

1432. Vol. IV.:—Annales Monasterii de Oseneia, 1016–1347; Chronicon vulgo dictum Chronicon Thomæ Wykes, 1066–1289; Annales Prioratus de Wigornia, 1–1377. Vol. V.:—Index and Glossary. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registry of the University, Cambridge. 1864–1869.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are ten in number. The extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From Manuscripts in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man, who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs. The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities was admitted to the closest intimacy. Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186; he died on the 16th of November 1200; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES and MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I.:—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II.:—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864–1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesauf, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS. belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

39. RECUEIL DES CRONIKES ET ANCHIENNES ISTORIES DE LA GRANT BRETAGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEHAN DE WAURIN. Vol. I. Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399–1422. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864–1868.
40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAURIN. Albina to 688. (Translation of the preceding Vol. I.) Edited and translated by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471, after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of the work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuyse and Earl of Winchester, from whose cabinet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. Vols. III., IV., V., and VI. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH RAWSON LUMBY, B.D., Vicar of St. Edward's, Cambridge, Fellow of St. Catharine's College, and late Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge. 1865-1876.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation, and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion, is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land. To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVRE DE REIS DE BRITTANIE E LE LIVRE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livre de Reis de Engleterre." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French.

It is supposed that Peter of Ickham must have been the author, but no certain conclusion on that point has been arrived at.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA, AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of the Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866-1868.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I., II., and III. 1067-1253. Edited by Sir FREDERIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1866-1869.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler, 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris) giving fuller details, which has been called the "Historia Major." The chronicle here published, nevertheless, gives some information not to be found in the greater history.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455-1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by EDWARD EDWARDS, Esq. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements, which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, from the EARLIEST TIMES to 1135; with a SUPPLEMENT, containing the Events from 1141 to 1150 Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are, the invasions of foreigners, and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN FRENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD to THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1866-1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and that he lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum," in the second, a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, down to the death of Henry III., and in the third a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward's Scottish wars. The language is singularly corrupt, and a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHIL WITH THE GAILL, or, THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEMEN. Edited, with a Translation, by JAMES HENTHORN TODD D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University, Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not himself an eye-witness, must have derived his information from those who were eye-witnesses. The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192; known

under the name of BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

This chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Benedict of Peterborough, is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the student.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSTEE, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

This work will supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOVEDENE. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868–1871.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr. Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little, and not always judiciously. From 1170 to 1192 is the portion which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49); but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase; occasionally the two works entirely agree; showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work: it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

52. WILLELMI MALMESBIRIENSIS MONACHI DE GESTIS PONTIFICUM ANGLORUM LIBRI QUINQUE. Edited, from William of Malmesbury's Autograph MS., by N. E. S. A. HAMILTON, Esq., of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1870.

William of Malmesbury's "Gesta Pontificum" is the principal foundation of English Ecclesiastical Biography, down to the year 1122. The manuscript which has been followed in this Edition is supposed by Mr. Hamilton to be the author's autograph, containing his latest additions and amendments.

53. HISTORIC AND MUNICIPAL DOCUMENTS OF IRELAND, FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN, &c. 1172–1320. Edited by JOHN T. GILBERT, Esq., F.S.A., Secretary of the Public Record Office of Ireland. 1870.

A collection of original documents, elucidating mainly the history and condition of the municipal, middle, and trading classes under or in relation with the rule of England in Ireland,—a subject hitherto in almost total obscurity. Extending over the first hundred and fifty years of the Anglo-Norman settlement, the series includes charters, municipal laws and regulations, rolls of names of citizens and members of merchant-guilds, lists of commodities with their rates, correspondence, illustrations of relations between ecclesiastics and laity; together with many documents exhibiting the state of Ireland during the presence there of the Scots under Robert and Edward Bruce.

54. THE ANNALS OF LOCH CÉ. A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM 1014 to 1590. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1871.

The original of this chronicle has passed under various names. The title of "Annals of Loch Cé" was given to it by Professor O'Curry, on the ground that it was transcribed for Brian Mac Dermot, an Irish chieftain, who resided on the island in Loch Cé, in the county of Roscommon. It adds much to the materials for the civil and ecclesiastical history of Ireland; and contains many curious references to English and foreign affairs, not noticed in any other chronicle.

55. MONUMENTA JURIDICA. THE BLACK BOOK OF THE ADMIRALTY, WITH APPENDICES. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1871-1876.

This book contains the ancient ordinances and laws relating to the navy, and was probably compiled for the use of the Lord High Admiral of England. Selden calls it the "jewel of the Admiralty Records." Prynne ascribes to the Black Book the same authority in the Admiralty as the Black and Red Books have in the Court of Exchequer, and most English writers on maritime law recognize its importance.

56. MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VI. :—OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THOMAS BEKYNTON, SECRETARY TO HENRY VI., AND BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS. Edited, from a MS. in the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth, with an Appendix of Illustrative Documents, by the Rev. GEORGE WILLIAMS, B.D., Vicar of Ringwood, late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Vols. I. and II. 1872.

These curious volumes are of a miscellaneous character, and were probably compiled under the immediate direction of Bekynton before he had attained to the Episcopate. They contain many of the Bishop's own letters, and several written by him in the King's name; also letters to himself while Royal Secretary, and others addressed to the King. This work elucidates some points in the history of the nation during the first half of the fifteenth century.

57. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS, MONACHI SANCTI ALBANI, CHRONICA MAJORA. Vol. I. The Creation to A.D. 1066. Vol. II. A.D. 1067 to A.D. 1216. Vol. III. A.D. 1216 to A.D. 1239. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, B.D., Fellow of Trinity College, Registry of the University, and Vicar of Great St. Mary's, Cambridge. 1872-1876.

This work contains the "Chronica Majora" of Matthew Paris, one of the most valuable and frequently consulted of the ancient English Chronicles. It is published from its commencement, for the first time. The editions by Archbishop Parker, and William Wats, severally begin at the Norman Conquest.

58. MEMORIALE FRATRIS WALTERI DE COVENTRIA.—THE HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF WALTER OF COVENTRY. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the MS. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1872-1873.

This work, now printed in full for the first time, has long been a desideratum by Historical Scholars. The first portion, however, is not of much importance, being only a compilation from earlier writers. The part relating to the first quarter of the thirteenth century is the most valuable and interesting.

59. THE ANGLO-LATIN SATIRICAL POETS AND EPIGRAMMATISTS OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY. Vols. I. and II. Now first collected and edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A., Corresponding Member of the National Institute of France (Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres). 1872.

The Poems contained in these volumes have long been known and appreciated as the best satires of the age in which their authors flourished, and were deservedly popular during the 13th and 14th centuries.

60. MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VII., FROM ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vol. I. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, M.A., one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. 1873.

This volume is valuable as illustrating the acts and proceedings of Henry VII. on ascending the throne, and shadows out the policy he afterwards adopted.

61. HISTORICAL PAPERS AND LETTERS FROM THE NORTHERN REGISTERS. Edited by JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1873.

The documents in this volume illustrate, for the most part, the general history of the north of England, particularly in its relation to Scotland.

62. REGISTRUM PALATINUM DUNELMENSE. THE REGISTER OF RICHARD DE KELLAWE, LORD PALATINE AND BISHOP OF DURHAM; 1311-1316. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1873-1875.

Bishop Kellawe's Register contains the proceedings of his prelacy, both lay and ecclesiastical, and is the earliest Register of the Palatinate of Durham.

63. MEMORIALS OF SAINT DUNSTAN ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Edited, from various MSS., by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1874.

This volume contains several lives of Archbishop Dunstan, one of the most celebrated Primates of Canterbury. They open various points of Historical and Literary interest, without which our knowledge of the period would be more incomplete than it is at present.

64. CHRONICON ANGLE, AB ANNO DOMINI 1328 USQUE AD ANNUM 1388, AUCTORE MONACHO QUODAM SANCTI ALBANI. Edited by EDWARD MAUNDE THOMPSON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and Assistant-Keeper of the Manuscripts in the British Museum. 1874.

This chronicle gives a circumstantial history of the close of the reign of Edward III. which has hitherto been considered lost.

65. THÓMAS SAGA ERKIBYSKUPS. A LIFE OF ARCHBISHOP THOMAS BECKET, IN ICELANDIC. Vol. I. Edited, with English Translation, Notes, and Glossary, by M. EIRÍKR MAGNÚSSON, Sub-Librarian of the University Library, Cambridge. 1875.

This work is derived from the Life of Becket written by Benedict of Peterborough, and apparently supplies the missing portions in Benedict's biography.

66. RADULPHI DE COGGESHALL CHRONICON ANGLICANUM. Edited by the REV. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A. 1875.

This volume contains the "Chronicon Anglicanum," by Ralph of Coggeshall, the "Libellus de Expugnacione Terræ Sanctæ per Saladinum," usually ascribed to the same author, and other pieces of an interesting character.

67. MATERIALS FOR THE HISTORY OF THOMAS BECKET, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by the Rev. JAMES CRAIGIE ROBERTSON, M.A., Canon of Canterbury. 1875-1877.

This Publication will comprise all contemporary materials for the history of Archbishop Thomas Becket. The first volume contains the life of that celebrated man, and the miracles after his death, by William, a monk of Canterbury. The second, the life by Benedict of Peterborough; John of Salisbury; Alan of Tewkesbury; and Edward Grim. The third, the life by William Fitzstephen; and Herbert of Bosham.

68. RADULFI DE DICETO DECANI LUNDONIENSIS OPERA HISTORICA. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF MASTER RALPH DE DICETO, DEAN OF LONDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the Original Manuscripts, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1876.

The Historical Works of Ralph de Diceto are some of the most valuable materials for British History. The Abbreviationes Chronicorum extend from the Creation to 1147, and the Ymagines Historiarum to 1201.

69. ROLL OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE KING'S COUNCIL IN IRELAND FOR A PORTION OF THE 16TH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD II. 1392-93. Edited by the Rev. JAMES GRAVES, A.B. 1877.

The Roll printed in this volume throws considerable light on the History of Ireland at a period when little is known of it, and seems to be the only document of the kind extant.

WORKS PUBLISHED IN PHOTOZINCOGRAPHY.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086; fac-simile of the Part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., Director. 35. Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863) boards. Price 4s. 6d. to 1l. 1s. each Part, according to size; or, bound in 2 Vols., 18l.

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each according to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor; the present possessor; how many hides were in the manor; how many ploughs were in demesne; how many homagers; how many villeins; how many cottars; how many serving men; how many free tenants; how many tenants in soccage; how much wood, meadow, and pasture; the number of mills and fish-ponds; what had been added or taken away from the place; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor; the present value; and how much each free man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward; who then held it; its value in the time of the late king; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, "it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, "nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.

*For some reason left unexplained, many parts were left unsurveyed; Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmoreland, and Durham, are not described in the survey; nor does Lancashire appear under its proper name; but Furness, and the northern part of Lancashire, as well as the south of Westmoreland, with a part of Cumberland, are included within the West Riding of Yorkshire. That part of Lancashire which lies between the Ribble and Mersey, and which at the time of the survey comprehended 688 manors, is joined to Cheshire. Part of Rutland is described in the counties of Northampton and Lincoln.

FAC-SIMILES OF NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS, from WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to QUEEN ANNE, selected under the direction of the Master of the Rolls, and Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, by Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey. Price, each Part, with translations and notes, double foolscap folio, 16s.

Part I. (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.). 1865.

Part II. (Henry VIII. and Edward VI.). 1866

Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth). 1867.

Part IV. (James I. to Anne). 1868.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part, for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters and autographs of kings, princes, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey. The fourth Part concludes the series, and comprises a number of documents taken from the originals belonging to the Constable of the Tower of London; also several records illustrative of the Gunpowder Plot, and a woodcut containing portraits of Mary Queen of Scots and James VI., circulated by their adherents in England, 1580-3.
